--- SUMMARY BODY ---

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Twist: The Marooning

Both tribes scramble to loot supplies from a ship, but there's a second win condition: two color-coded knots sit in the water. Anyone can dive in, swim out, and untie their tribe's knot. First tribe to finish releases a toolkit.

Winner: Naale
Reward: Toolkit

Strategic impact:
Naale earns early "camp power." Toolkits usually translate into better shelter/fire setup and calmer morale — especially valuable heading into an early Tribal where stress magnifies everything.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Naale

Cody finds the Legacy Advantage
• Can be used only when 13 or 6 players remain
• If Cody is voted out, he must will it to someone else
• Not usable this round

Strategic impact:
Cody becomes a long-term "inheritance node." People now have a quiet incentive to keep him close (future benefit) or to clip him before the window becomes live (future risk). Either way, his presence starts shaping endgame thinking earlier than it should in Episode 1.

TRIBE RELATIONSHIPS

Lawa — scattered micro-friction, no structure

Soft bonds:

- Devin ↔ Carrie slight bond
- Devin ↔ Lorenzo slight bond
- Lorenzo ↔ Laurie slight bond
- Spud ↔ MacArthur slight bond

Friction points:

- MacArthur ↔ Lorenzo mild dislike
- Spud ↔ Ellody slight dislike
- Spud ↔ Carrie slight dislike
- Pete ↔ Carrie slight dislike
- Tom ↔ Ellody slight dislike
- Tom ↔ Taylor slight dislike

Strategic impact:
Lawa is “evenly messy,” which is actually safer than being “one-person messy.” No one is instantly the consensus boot. The only early warning is Carrie stacking mild negatives (Pete + Spud) despite having Devin—she’s the easiest future compromise name if Lawa loses.

Naale — web tribe, early target talk begins fast

Positive ties:

- Jasmine ↔ Cody slight bond
- Jasmine ↔ Brody slight bond
- Scott ↔ Cody slight bond
- Scott ↔ Jasmine slight bond
- Zoey ↔ Brody slight bond
- Sky ↔ Lindsay slight bond

Fractures:

- Lindsay ↔ Jasmine slight dislike
- Lindsay ↔ Jacques slight dislike
- Zoey ↔ Scott slight dislike

- Sky ↔ Kitty slight dislike

Strategic impact:
Naale has no alliance structure, so the first vote is primed to become a story vote: whoever becomes easiest to justify gets clipped, even if they aren't the "biggest problem."

(Light favorites callback, minimal but meaningful: Naale has multiple returnees who've played before, and those tribes often default to "remove the person who could snowball." That instinct matters later.)

CHALLENGES

Immunity Challenge — Blue Lagoon Bustle

Obstacle swim → net climb → barrel roll → platform keys → captain's wheel puzzle → raise flag.

Winner: Lawa
• Wins immunity
• Wins flint

Strategic meaning:
Lawa gets stability + survival resources. Naale goes to Tribal first despite having the toolkit — proving that "camp advantage" doesn't equal "challenge cohesion."

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Lawa (safe)

- Devin & Spud bond strongly (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This is the premiere's biggest quiet power development. A strong, lasting bond this early often becomes the first real voting spine when a tribe finally loses.
- Laurie rests to restore energy
  Strategic consequence: Neutral now, but "resting" can become ammo later if someone needs a low-effort liability narrative.

Naale (scramble)

- Lindsay & Shawn small fight (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This gives the tribe a clean justification to vote Lindsay without exposing deeper strategy. “Lasting fight” = easy consensus fuel.
- Lindsay & Scott bond slightly
  Strategic consequence: It doesn’t save her, which signals Scott’s bond-building is still flexible (or powerless) in Episode 1.
- Jacques & Sky bond slightly
  Strategic consequence: Small, but it matters because Sky becomes a reliable majority vote later; Jacques is quietly building insulation.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets

- Shawn → Lindsay (“challenge liability”)
- Lindsay → Jasmine (“challenge liability”)
- Scott → Brody (“challenge liability”)

Strategic reality:
Everyone uses “liability” language, but the vote outcome screams comfort + risk management, not pure performance.

Final Targets

Lindsay / Jasmine / Brody

No group target listed. No alliance visible.
This is a free-floating tribe choosing the safest “explainable” boot.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #1 — Naale

Advantages Played

- None
- Cody’s Legacy Advantage inactive
- No idol played

Vote Breakdown

Lindsay eliminated (6–2–2)

Votes for Lindsay (6): Brody, Jacques, Jasmine, Kitty, Shawn, Sky
Votes for Brody (2): Cody, Scott
Votes for Jasmine (2): Lindsay, Zoey

WHY THIS VOTE HAPPENED (THE REAL READ)

Surface story: Lindsay fought with Shawn, looked like friction, easy justification.
True structure: Lindsay had just enough enemies and not enough protectors to survive a consensus.

But there's an extra layer that matters for story:

Winner tax (light callback, not overwhelming)

Lindsay is a proven winner from past seasons — and winners going first is rarely "just about the fight."
In returnee-heavy tribes, Episode 1 logic often becomes:

- don't let a former champ find rhythm
- don't let them rebuild social capital
- cut them before alliances lock

Even if nobody says it out loud, the tribe's "safest boot" often overlaps with "most dangerous resume."
This vote did both.

ELIMINATED

Lindsay
Reason label: consensus boot fueled by a lasting fight — and quietly amplified by winner threat perception.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Naale chose stability over structure.
   This vote removes noise, but it doesn't create a controlling majority. The tribe still has no obvious core.
2. The "liability" framing was cover for comfort voting.
   The targets were all justified the same way, but Lindsay's fight made her the easiest to sell.

3. Cody's Legacy Advantage is a future social gravity well.
   People may orbit him for inheritance value — or move against him before it becomes live. Either way, Cody is now relevant in conversations he shouldn't be relevant in yet.
4. Jasmine survives being named — that's social strength.
   Two votes hit her, but the tribe didn't consolidate. That suggests she has enough web ties (Cody/Brody lanes) to avoid being the easy boot.
5. Brody taking 2 votes is an early threat ping.
   Cody + Scott already clocked him. If Brody doesn't build a shield, he becomes a mid-premerge target even if he's "useful."
6. Winner-first-boot is a statement season.
   Lindsay going out first tells the audience (and the cast) what Naale is willing to do: resume threats won't be given time to breathe.
7. Lawa quietly won the episode socially.
   Devin/Spud forming a strong lasting bond while safe is the kind of hidden foundation that dominates later.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Lawa (10)

Alliances: none (official)
Advantages: none found; idol hidden
Core dynamics:

- Devin ↔ Spud strong lasting duo (emerging spine)
- Carrie collecting mild friction
- Tom involved in multiple slight dislikes (future "easy name" potential)

Naale (9)

Alliances: none
Advantages:

- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive)
- Idol hidden
  Core dynamics:
- Tribe still floating → future votes could remain messy
- Jasmine and Brody both "named" but survived → they're relevant pieces
- Winner boot sets a tone: Naale will cut big names early

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Naale finally form a real alliance, or keep operating as a consensus swarm?
2. Does Cody's Legacy Advantage make him protected (inheritance value) or marked (future danger)?
3. Are the 2 votes on Brody the start of a real threat campaign—or just premiere noise?
4. Does Jasmine consolidate control now that she survived being targeted?
5. On Lawa, does Devin/Spud pull in a third and lock power before they ever lose?
6. Does the "winner-first-boot" mindset spread to other threats next (Zoey/Jacques/Jasmine)?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Lawa — “soft bonds forming, but the dislike web is getting sharper”

Key ties and fractures:

- Spud ↔ Devin: mutual small bond
  Strategic impact: Spud is socially safer than his “chaos” archetype suggests; he has a real bridge to a more normal player.
- Devin ↔ Carrie: slight bond (continuing)
  Strategic impact: Carrie’s best protection is still Devin—if Devin ever turns, she’s exposed.
- Tom ↔ Spud: slight bond (new)
  Strategic impact: Spud is building a “boys lane” safety net (Spud/Tom plus MacArthur bond), which later matters at Tribal.

Key dislike pressure:

- Laurie ↔ Devin: mutual mild dislike (new)
  Strategic impact: This is important because Devin becomes part of the first majority later. Laurie being against Devin means she's likely outside the core as soon as structure forms.
- Taylor ↔ Laurie: mutual mild dislike + Spud ↔ Laurie: mutual mild dislike Strategic impact: Laurie is quietly stacking enemies across multiple social lanes; she's drifting toward "future easy boot."
- MacArthur ↔ Lorenzo: mutual mild dislike (still active)
  Strategic impact: This remains a ready-made vote wedge if Lawa ever needs a split target.

Naale — "favorites stop floating and start building structure"

Key ties and fractures:

- Zoey ↔ Brody: slight bond (continuing)
  Strategic impact: Zoey isn't isolated despite Lindsay leaving; she still has a social bridge into the "physical lane."
- Jasmine ↔ Cody: slight bond + Jasmine ↔ Brody: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Jasmine is again the glue between big presences. She's positioning as a stabilizer/leader archetype.
- Jacques ↔ Cody: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: This is a big long-term crack inside the tribe's strategic class. If power consolidates around Cody later (Legacy), Jacques becomes a likely counter-force.
- Sky ↔ Kitty: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: Sky and Kitty are a natural "two competent women" lane, but the dislike blocks that partnership—setting up a future "which one goes first" conversation.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Lawa

- Lawa Hidden Immunity Idol: hidden

Naale

- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive this round; usable at 13 or 6 remaining; must be willed if voted out)
  Strategic impact: Cody's value continues rising quietly—he's becoming an "endgame node" even while the tribe is still premerge.
- Kitty finds the Naale Hidden Immunity Idol (playable before votes are read)
  Strategic impact: Naale now has the real early advantage edge: idol + Legacy in the same tribe. Kitty becomes both safer and more dangerous (people fear idol-holders the moment they're suspected).

(Light returnee seasoning: Kitty has a history of playing socially-first. Finding an idol doesn't automatically mean she'll play aggressively—she's more likely to use it as insurance while locking relationships.)

CHALLENGES

Immunity Challenge — Serpent Turf

Swim → bamboo cage climb → retrieve 400-lb snake → balance beam → number tile combo → ring toss spelling IMMUNITY.

Winner: Naale
Reward add-on: fishing kit + raft at camp

Strategic meaning:
Naale avoids a second straight Tribal and gets camp food resources—perfect timing after voting out a former winner last episode. This gives them breathing room to form alliances without immediate vote pressure.

Loser: Lawa

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Lawa (goes to Tribal)

Relationship events

- Pete ↔ Taylor bond strongly (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This is massive: a strong, lasting bond becomes a command line inside any alliance that forms. Pete and Taylor are now a real paired voting unit.
- Carrie & Ellody find something in common
  Strategic consequence: This was Ellody's best lifeline… but it was too late and too small to counter a majority.
- Laurie & Taylor find something in common (despite mild dislike earlier listed between Taylor/Laurie)
  Strategic consequence: This reads like "functional cooperation," not true loyalty. It doesn't translate into protection at Tribal.

Alliance formation

Lawa Alliance #1 forms (Strength 5, all loyalties 5):
Devin / MacArthur / Pete / Spud / Taylor / Tom

(yes, listed as 5 strength but 6 members — treat it as a new majority bloc with moderate commitment)

Strategic consequence:
Lawa instantly flips from “no structure” to “we have a voting machine.”
The loyalty numbers being flat 5 means it’s stable for now, but not unbreakable—this is a practical majority, not a family.

Target matrix (Lawa)

Individual targets were scattered:

- Laurie → Spud
- Devin → Ellody
- Pete → Lorenzo
- Spud → Carrie
- Lorenzo → MacArthur

But the alliance target becomes decisive:

- Alliance #1 targets Ellody

Final targets: Ellody vs Carrie

Real strategic read:
Carrie was the “easy compromise” name… until the majority realized Ellody is safer to remove because:

- Ellody has fewer embedded bonds,
- she’s less likely to retaliate through social connections,
- and Carrie can be kept as a controllable secondary boot later.

That’s textbook majority behavior: save the bigger social node, cut the cleaner loose end.

Naale (safe)

- Kitty & Shawn find something in common (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This is extremely important because it links Kitty (now idol-holder) to Shawn (a likely challenge-focused voter). That’s the kind of bond that prevents “flush the idol” narratives from forming early.
- Brody & Jasmine find something in common (lasting) + bond slightly
  Strategic consequence: This pair is now a stable physical-leadership lane. If Naale ever loses, they will be able to steer the vote.
- Naale Alliance #1 forms (Strength 6): Brody (L6) / Cody (L5) / Jasmine (L6) / Scott (L5)
  Strategic consequence: Naale finally forms a core. It’s not the whole tribe—meaning Jacques/Sky/Kitty/Shawn/Zoey are either outside or floating. That creates future boot lanes.

- Brody works hard and becomes tired

ALLIANCE CHANGES

Lawa

- Lawa Alliance #1 formed (majority bloc; moderate loyalty)

Naale

- Naale Alliance #1 formed (core 4)
- Kitty found idol (creates a shadow power center that is not necessarily inside the 4)

TRIBAL COUNCIL #2 — Lawa

Advantages Played

- None (idol still hidden)

Vote Breakdown

Ellody eliminated, 7–3

Votes for Ellody (7): Carrie, Devin, MacArthur, Pete, Spud, Taylor, Tom Votes for Carrie (3): Ellody, Laurie, Lorenzo

What this reveals

- The new majority bloc held firm.
- Laurie and Lorenzo are already operating as a minority lane.
- Carrie voting with the majority while being a final target shows she successfully integrated enough to be saved—for now.

ELIMINATED

Ellody
Reason label: “clean majority boot” — easiest consensus target once alliance formed.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Lawa went from chaos to control in one episode.
   Forming a majority before a chaotic vote is how tribes avoid Episode 1-style randomness. They executed the correct stabilizing move.
2. Carrie survived because she's useful, not because she's safe.
   She was still a final target. The majority simply chose the cleaner name first. Carrie is now in the dangerous role of "saved but remembered."
3. Laurie is drifting toward the bottom.
   She has multiple mild dislikes (Devin, Taylor, Spud), and her voting lane just lost. Unless she repairs with Devin or Taylor, she becomes the next easy justification boot.
4. Pete/Taylor is a real power pair now.
   Their strong lasting bond plus majority membership means they can become the decision-makers inside Alliance #1.
5. Naale is quietly becoming the advantage tribe.
   Legacy (Cody) + Idol (Kitty) is a huge premerge arsenal. Even without using them, it shapes how other players behave once suspicion starts.
6. Naale's alliance doesn't include the idol holder — that's a future explosion setup.
   Kitty holding the idol while a separate 4-person core forms is the classic "power outside the majority" situation. If Naale ever loses, the vote becomes:
   Do we target the core (Brody/Jasmine/Cody/Scott) or flush Kitty?
7. Episode 1's winner boot is already paying dividends for Naale.
   With Lindsay gone, the tribe's threat temperature drops and they can build structure without a "big resume" sucking up oxygen. That's why cutting a former winner early often stabilizes a returnee tribe.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Lawa (9)

Alliance: Lawa Alliance #1 (majority)
Advantages: none known (idol hidden)
Dynamics:

- Majority core: Devin/MacArthur/Pete/Spud/Taylor/Tom
- Minority lane: Laurie + Lorenzo
- Swing-ish survivor: Carrie (targeted but integrated)

Naale (9)

Alliance: Naale Alliance #1 (core 4)
Advantages:

- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive)
- Kitty: Hidden Immunity Idol

  Dynamics:
- Core 4 emerging: Brody/Jasmine/Cody/Scott
- Outsiders/floats: Jacques, Sky, Kitty, Shawn, Zoey
- Cracks: Jacques vs Cody dislike; Sky vs Kitty dislike
- Safety net forming: Kitty ↔ Shawn lasting bond; Zoey ↔ Brody bond

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. On Lawa, does the majority tighten into a true inner core (Pete/Taylor + who), or stay a loose coalition?
2. Is Carrie now the “next easy name,” or can she flip Laurie/Lorenzo into a counter-lane?
3. Does Laurie become the next consensus boot because of stacked dislikes and failed targeting?
4. On Naale, does Kitty hide the idol quietly or start using it as social leverage?
5. Will Cody vs Jacques become the season’s first real strategic rivalry on the Favorites tribe?
6. If Naale loses next, is the vote a core strike (Brody/Jasmine) or an idol paranoia strike (Kitty)?

Twist: Three-Tribe Random Swap

Production detonates the early game by randomly reassigning everyone into three tribes.
Strategic impact: This is a “structure reset” twist—but not a clean one. Old alliances still exist on paper, and the swap decides who gets to weaponize them and who gets stranded.

Alliance Carryover (Pre-Swap Structures Still Listed)

Lawa Alliance #1 (from Episode 2): Devin / MacArthur / Pete / Spud / Taylor / Tom (all loyalty ~5)
Naale Alliance #1 (from Episode 2): Brody / Cody / Jasmine / Scott (loyalty 5–6)

Strategic impact: Neither alliance is “dead,” but both become fragmented. Now the game is:

- Who can rebuild a majority using scattered former allies?
- Who becomes the odd piece without their old numbers?

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Lawa (Cody, Kitty, Laurie, Scott, Shawn, Spud) — “advantages stack, but cohesion collapses”

Key ties and fractures:

- Shawn ↔ Kitty: small bond
  Strategic impact: This bond is now premium because Kitty is becoming the advantage vault. Shawn is the person most likely to protect her before anyone even suspects she’s stacked.
- Scott ↔ Cody: slight bond and Shawn ↔ Cody: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Cody has immediate stabilization connections. Even in a small tribe, he isn’t isolated—which matters because his Legacy Advantage will eventually make him a target.
- Kitty ↔ Cody: slight bond and Spud ↔ Kitty: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Kitty has multiple light shields. This is how idol-holders survive: not by dominating, but by being “liked enough.”

Key dislike pressure:

- Shawn ↔ Scott: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: Shawn is bonded to Kitty but dislikes Scott; this creates a natural “Kitty-middle” lane where she can choose which side lives.
- Spud ↔ Scott: mutual slight dislike and Scott ↔ Kitty: mutual slight dislike Strategic impact: Scott is socially choppy in this tribe. In a 6-person tribe, two active dislikes can put you in instant danger if you lose once.

- Spud ↔ Laurie: mutual mild dislike and Spud ↔ Laurie: mutual mild dislike (still active)
  Strategic impact: Laurie continues being a friction magnet. Even with advantages elsewhere, she can become the easiest “keep tribe strong” pitch.

Naale (Carrie, Devin, Jacques, Jasmine, Taylor, Zoey) — “social glue tribe… until the women detonate”

Key ties and fractures:

- Devin ↔ Carrie: slight bond
  Strategic impact: This is the one stable link from old Lawa dynamics. If Naale ever loses, Devin/Carrie can form the first real voting nucleus.
- Taylor ↔ Devin: slight bond and Taylor ↔ Carrie: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Taylor is quietly inserted into the Devin/Carrie lane—meaning she can be a swing piece between the couples and the strategists.
- Zoey ↔ Jacques: slight bond and Zoey ↔ Jasmine: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Zoey is building a “returnee social mesh” again—she’s not trying to lead, she’s trying to be impossible to target cleanly.

Key dislike pressure:

- Jacques ↔ Carrie: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: Jacques immediately sees Carrie as socially slippery. Carrie immediately sees Jacques as controlling. That’s a future strategic rivalry.
- Zoey ↔ Devin: mutual slight dislike and Jasmine ↔ Devin: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: Devin is weirdly positioned: bonded with Carrie, but disliked by two socially respected favorites. If Naale loses, Devin becomes a plausible target despite being “useful.”

Mauhu (Brody, Lorenzo, MacArthur, Pete, Sky, Tom) — “instant anti-Brody consensus seeded by old Lawa pieces”

Key ties and fractures:

- Tom ↔ Sky: slight bond and Tom ↔ MacArthur: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Tom is quietly connected to multiple lanes. In a 6-person tribe, that makes him hard to target.
- Lorenzo ↔ Brody: slight bond and Pete ↔ Brody: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Brody isn’t isolated at face value—he has two soft ties. That’s why his elimination ends up being structural, not purely social.

Key dislike pressure:

- MacArthur ↔ Lorenzo: mild dislike
  Strategic impact: This feud is still live and becomes an alternative target option.

- Sky ↔ Brody: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: This is the key non-alliance vote that seals Brody later. Sky is the swing vote—and she already dislikes him.
- Tom ↔ Pete and Pete ↔ MacArthur and Tom ↔ Lorenzo (slight dislikes)
  Strategic impact: This tribe is messy, but the mess doesn't matter because one player becomes the obvious "remove the threat" option.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Lawa (Swap Tribe)

- Kitty has the Naale Hidden Immunity Idol (from Episode 2)
- Kitty finds the Lawa Hidden Immunity Idol (now playable before votes are read)
- Cody has the Legacy Advantage (inactive this round; usable at 13 or 6 remaining; must be willed if voted out)

Strategic impact:
Kitty becomes a walking nuclear bunker: two idols across two tribal designations (as recorded) in a tiny tribe. Even if nobody knows, it changes the season because:

- if she's discovered, she becomes "flush at all costs"
- if she stays hidden, she becomes a midgame kingmaker
  Cody holding Legacy while sitting next to a double-idol holder means Lawa is now the season's power-storage tribe.

Naale (Swap Tribe)

- No idol shown as hidden because Kitty holds Naale idol (status: "not currently hidden")
  Strategic impact: The tribe has no direct idol holder, which usually increases paranoia—people assume someone has it, but can't locate it.

Mauhu (New Tribe)

- Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol: hidden

Immunity + Reward — Austin's Elemental Obstacle Course

Tethered rope run → hay tunnel → hitching posts → water carry over teeter-totter → fill bucket gate → plank puzzle.
First two tribes win immunity.

Winners (immunity):

1. Lawa wins immunity + tarp + choice (comfort items vs seasonings)
2. Naale wins immunity
   Loser: Mauhu (goes to Tribal)

Strategic meaning:
The swap instantly creates a "sacrifice tribe." Mauhu goes to Tribal on swap episode—classic spot for a big-name, no-roots boot.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Lawa (safe, but volatile)

- Cody & Laurie major fight (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This is huge because Cody is both (1) advantage-adjacent and (2) socially central. Laurie fighting him reinforces her "friction" narrative and raises her boot equity the moment Lawa loses.
- Kitty & Scott bond strongly
  Strategic consequence: Scott just gained the best kind of shield: a strong bond with the person who is secretly holding the most power in the game. If Kitty ever needs a vote, Scott is the easiest recruit.
- Shawn works hard and becomes tired
  Strategic consequence: minor—could become "liability talk" later.

Naale (safe, but fractures)

- Carrie & Zoey major fight (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This is a big deal. Zoey is usually the "social stabilizer" archetype; a lasting major fight means she's no longer invisible. Carrie now has a direct enemy on a tribe where she already has slight dislike with Jacques—Carrie is suddenly in danger if Naale loses once.

(Light returnee seasoning: Zoey has survived early chaos before by reconnecting socially fast. After a major fight, her best move is usually "repair + disappear." If she stays loud, she becomes a target.)

Mauhu (losing tribe → chaos accelerates)

- Brody major meltdown
  Strategic consequence: On a 6-person swap tribe, meltdowns are basically self-elimination fuel. It gives everyone a clean reason to vote you while claiming it's for tribe stability.

- MacArthur & Pete minor disagreement (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: The old Lawa majority is cracking inside Mauhu—but they still share enough alignment to vote together.
- Lorenzo & Pete bond slightly (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: Lorenzo is actively insulating himself with an ex-majority member. That's how you survive a swap vote.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets (Mauhu)

- Brody → MacArthur (strong dislike)
  Strategic reality: Brody tries to strike at an old-structure player before they lock the tribe.
- Tom → Brody ("somewhat weak")
  Strategic reality: Tom frames it as strength, but it's also "remove the chaotic threat."
- MacArthur → Lorenzo ("somewhat weak")
  Strategic reality: This is a decoy/backup option and also fueled by their ongoing dislike.

Group Targets

Lawa Alliance #1 (fragment now present on Mauhu as MacArthur/Pete/Tom) → Brody

Strategic reality:
This is the most important line of the episode: old Lawa structure survives the swap in pieces.
MacArthur/Pete/Tom immediately form the controlling lane and choose the safest boot: the outsider with meltdown energy.

Final Targets

Brody vs Lorenzo

Real read: Lorenzo survives because he built a bond with Pete and offered less chaos. Brody had no embedded protection and gave the tribe a meltdown narrative.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #3 — Mauhu

Advantages Played

- None (Mauhu idol still hidden)

Vote Breakdown

Brody eliminated, 5–1

Votes for Brody (5): Lorenzo, MacArthur, Pete, Sky, Tom Votes for Lorenzo (1): Brody

What this reveals

- Old Lawa numbers mattered. MacArthur/Pete/Tom vote as a bloc.
- Sky is the swing—and she lands against Brody. Her slight dislike + Brody meltdown makes it easy.
- Lorenzo chose the majority over loyalty. Even though he had a slight bond with Brody, he votes him out—pure survival move.

ELIMINATED

Brody
Reason label: swap-tribe meltdown boot + old-structure majority consolidation.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. This swap was not random in outcome: it created a sacrifice tribe, and Mauhu paid immediately.
   When only two tribes win immunity, the third tribe becomes a fast “get rid of the outsider” machine.
2. MacArthur/Pete/Tom quietly carried Lawa Alliance #1 into the swap and used it instantly.
   The alliance is “broken” on paper, but its members still recognize each other as default votes. That’s all you need at a 6-person Tribal.
3. Brody played the worst possible swap episode: meltdown + targeting a core piece.
   If you’re the outsider, you can’t both (a) explode emotionally and (b) swing at the center. That guarantees consolidation against you.
4. Sky decided the vote.
   With only three “old Lawa” present, Sky’s vote is the difference between a split and a steamroll. Her slight dislike of Brody made the decision effortless.
5. Lorenzo upgraded his game by bonding with Pete and betraying Brody.
   Cold, but correct. He chose structure over sentiment and bought himself at least one more round.

6. Kitty is now the season's hidden boss.
   Two idols + strong bond with Scott + workable ties to Shawn/Spud = she can survive almost any premerge scenario if she doesn't get exposed. The danger is not "getting voted out." The danger is becoming known.
7. Naale's next loss could be a bloodbath because the tribe already has a major fight.
   Carrie vs Zoey lasting conflict creates a clean "pick a side" Tribal the moment they lose—especially with Jacques already disliking Carrie and Devin being disliked by Zoey/Jasmine.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Lawa (6) — Cody / Kitty / Laurie / Scott / Shawn / Spud

Alliances (carryover):

- Naale Alliance #1 fragments present: Cody + Scott (Jasmine/Brody not here)
  Advantages:
- Cody: Legacy (inactive)
- Kitty: Naale Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Idol
  Dynamics:
- Cody vs Laurie major fight (lasting)
- Kitty/Scott strong bond → Scott has the best protection on the tribe
- Scott disliked by Shawn/Spud/Kitty earlier, but the bond with Kitty offsets risk

Naale (6) — Carrie / Devin / Jacques / Jasmine / Taylor / Zoey

Alliances (carryover):

- Lawa Alliance #1 fragment present: Devin + Taylor
  Advantages:
- none held on this tribe
  Dynamics:
- Carrie vs Zoey major fight (lasting)
- Jacques dislikes Carrie; Zoey/Jasmine dislike Devin → Devin could become the "easy consensus" if the tribe wants peace

Mauhu (5) — Lorenzo / MacArthur / Pete / Sky / Tom

Alliances:

- Lawa Alliance #1 fragment: MacArthur/Pete/Tom functioning as core lane
  Advantages:
- Mauhu idol still hidden
  Dynamics:

- MacArthur/Pete minor disagreement (lasting) hints this bloc is not unbreakable
- Sky now integrated by vote choice; Lorenzo survived by flipping

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Kitty's double-idol situation stay secret, or does information leak through Scott/Shawn/Spud?
2. Can Laurie recover after a lasting major fight with Cody, or is she the first Lawa boot if they lose?
3. On Naale, does the Carrie vs Zoey fight force an immediate "side vote" the moment they lose?
4. Is Devin in danger because Zoey/Jasmine both dislike him, even though he has bonds with Carrie/Taylor?
5. On Mauhu, does Sky become a swing kingmaker between MacArthur/Pete/Tom and Lorenzo?
6. Does the split Lawa Alliance #1 reassemble at merge—or fracture into sub-wars because members were forced to betray different people?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Lawa — “advantage vault tribe, but the social core is cracking violently”

Key ties and fractures:

- Laurie ↔ Cody: mutual extreme hatred (escalated to worst level)
  Strategic impact: This is not “spice,” it’s a permanent win condition for both: one must remove the other. In a 6-person tribe, extreme hatred forces camps and accelerates alliance formation.
- Shawn ↔ Cody: mutual small bond + Kitty ↔ Cody: mutual small bond
  Strategic impact: Cody still has bridges. Even while hated by Laurie, he’s not isolated—meaning Laurie’s best path is not “flip the tribe,” it’s “create a safe majority.”
- Kitty ↔ Shawn: mutual small bond + Spud ↔ Kitty: mutual small bond
  Strategic impact: Kitty sits in the middle of two social lanes and holds the power suite. She can decide which lane gets protected.
- Scott ↔ Cody: slight bond + Scott ↔ Kitty: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Scott is positioned to be the “glue lieutenant” between Cody and Kitty—dangerous in the long run, but great for surviving the next Tribal.
- Spud ↔ Laurie: mutual mild dislike
  Strategic impact: Laurie stacking negativity continues. Even when she “wins” the Cody war, she risks becoming the next easy boot for being hard to live with.

Naale — “the tribe looks calm, but it’s actually a multi-way dislike map”

Key ties and fractures:

- Devin ↔ Carrie: mutual small bond
  Strategic impact: This remains the most real pair on the tribe. If Naale ever loses, this duo becomes a ready-made voting nucleus.
- Zoey ↔ Jacques: slight bond + Taylor ↔ Jacques: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Jacques is rebuilding a small protection web. He’s not controlling yet, but he’s no longer “exposed strategist.”

Key dislike pressure:

- Zoey ↔ Carrie: mutual medium dislike (continuing from their major fight last episode)
  Strategic impact: This is now a standing “side war.” If Naale loses, the vote can become which side has more numbers, not who is weakest.
- Zoey ↔ Devin: mutual slight dislike + Zoey ↔ Taylor: mutual slight dislike Strategic impact: Zoey is gathering friction. If she keeps stacking negatives, she becomes a merge-risk target even without Tribal losses.
- Jacques ↔ Carrie: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: Carrie is becoming “socially messy but influential.” Strategists (Jacques) rarely tolerate that for long.
- Taylor ↔ Jasmine: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: This creates a future “competence vs control” split; Jasmine is a natural leader, Taylor is a stubborn contributor.

Mauhu — "Pete/Lorenzo bond forms, but the idol changes the whole tribe"

Key ties and fractures:

- Pete ↔ Lorenzo: mutual medium bond (upgraded)
  Strategic impact: Lorenzo just gained the best possible shield: a strong relationship with a former majority power-holder. This is why he survives later chaos.
- Pete ↔ MacArthur: mutual mild dislike
  Strategic impact: This feud is now structural. Two "old-structure" players don't trust each other—perfect setup for idol paranoia later.
- Tom ↔ Sky: slight bond + Sky ↔ Pete: slight bond + Tom ↔ MacArthur: slight bond + Sky ↔ MacArthur: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Mauhu is webby. No one is fully isolated—which makes the idol-holder's choices matter even more.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Lawa

- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive this round; usable at 13 or 6 remaining; must be willed if voted out)
- Kitty: Naale Hidden Immunity Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Hidden Immunity Idol

Strategic impact:
Lawa remains the season's power vault. The scary part is that the tribe is also socially unstable (Cody vs Laurie). That combo creates the classic situation where someone with huge power is forced into an early defensive play… and Kitty didn't even need to use hers yet.

Naale

- Naale idol is "not currently hidden" only because it's already held (by Kitty), meaning no idol is in circulation here.

Mauhu

- MacArthur finds the Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol (playable before votes are read)
  Strategic impact:
  MacArthur becomes the immediate kingmaker of Mauhu. Even if she never plays it, she now controls the fear economy: people plan around what she might do.

CHALLENGES

Reward Challenge — Unchained Medley

Winners:

- Lawa wins reward — PB&J sandwiches, cookies, milk
- Mauhu wins reward — PB&J sandwiches

Strategic meaning:
Reward wins matter because they reduce camp stress before an immunity loss. Lawa gets sugar + morale, which ironically makes alliance-building easier right before a chaotic Tribal day.

Immunity Challenge — Ow-Pairs

Blindfolded pairs guided by a caller → collect 3 bags → table maze balls.

Winner: Naale wins immunity

Twist: Both losing tribes (Lawa and Mauhu) attend Tribal Council as one group.
Strategic meaning:
This is not a normal Tribal. It's a forced cross-tribe vote where:

- old alliances try to re-link,
- idols become exponentially more valuable,
- and "consensus boots" become messy because there are multiple tribe priorities.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Lawa (pre-merged Tribal pool)

- Scott impresses the rest of the team
  Strategic consequence: Scott's threat level rises but so does his protection. Being "impressive" right before a joint Tribal often makes you a target—unless your alliance locks first.
- Kitty & Spud minor disagreement (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This is important because Spud becomes the final boot. Even a "minor lasting" disagreement gives Kitty an easy justification to cut him without making it look strategic.
- Naale Alliance #1 dissolves (the Cody/Jasmine/Scott carryover fragment officially collapses)
  Strategic consequence: Cody is now free-floating strategically. He is no longer protected by the "favorites core" label and must rely on immediate tribe relationships.

- Lawa Alliance #2 forms: Kitty (L5) / Scott (L7) / Shawn (L6) — Strength 6
  Strategic consequence: This is the episode's power event. Kitty anchors it, Scott is the loyal engine (L7), Shawn is the stable third. It's a controlling trio in a vote pool full of chaos.

Group target: Lawa Alliance #2 → Spud
Strategic logic: easiest internal cleanup + removes a volatile piece.

Naale (immune but still reshaping future votes)

- Taylor impresses the rest of the team
  Strategic consequence: Taylor's value rises, making her less likely to be an early boot if Naale loses soon.
- MacArthur leaves Lawa Alliance #1 (the old majority continues to fracture post-swap)
  Strategic consequence: That is a huge signal: MacArthur refuses to be locked into the old Lawa structure. This matters because MacArthur later votes with Mauhu alliance and becomes a swing lever in the joint Tribal.
- Naale Alliance #2 forms: Jacques / Taylor / Zoey (all loyalty 6)
  Strategic consequence: This is Naale's first real "we're not just floating" coalition. It also creates a counterweight to Carrie/Devin and Jasmine leadership.

Mauhu (entering the joint Tribal as the most dangerous tribe)

- MacArthur & Pete small fight (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This locks their rivalry. It also makes Pete's "Cody target" lane plausible—he doesn't trust MacArthur, so he wants outside numbers.
- MacArthur & Sky find something in common (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This explains why Sky later votes with MacArthur (and why MacArthur's alliance even forms).
- Mauhu Alliance #1 forms: MacArthur (L6) / Sky (L6) / Tom (L5) — Strength 6
  Strategic consequence: Mauhu enters the joint Tribal with a tight 3-person voting unit plus an idol in MacArthur's pocket. That is lethal in a cross-tribe scramble.

Group target: Mauhu Alliance #1 → Scott
Strategic logic: Scott looks like a social/adaptable swing with connections; remove the glue before he flips the vote.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets (multi-tribe pool)

- Laurie ↔ Cody mutual targeting (hatred war)
- MacArthur ↔ Pete targeting each other (tribal civil war)
- Sky targets Spud (liability framing)
- Lorenzo targets Shawn (liability framing)
- Shawn targets Lorenzo (liability framing)

Group Targets (the real lanes)

- Old Lawa Alliance #1 fragment (Pete/Spud/Tom) → Cody
  Strategic reality: This is the most important threat to Cody so far. Pete + Tom still recognize Cody as a dangerous connector/advantage holder, and Spud is the easiest third vote to recruit.
- Lawa Alliance #2 (Kitty/Scott/Shawn) → Spud
  Strategic reality: Internal cleanup + remove chaos + remove a person Kitty just clashed with.
- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur/Sky/Tom) → Scott
  Strategic reality: Scott is the most "connector" player in the joint pool and has rising respect. Removing him prevents the other tribe from building a stable majority.

Final Realistic Targets

Spud / Cody / Scott

This is a classic three-lane joint Tribal: each bloc has its own preferred victim.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #4 — Joint Tribal (Lawa + Mauhu)

Advantages in the room (NOT played)

- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive)
- Kitty: Naale Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Idol
- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol
  No one plays anything.

Strategic consequence:
Everyone hoarded power, meaning the result is pure vote math and coalition discipline—not advantage chaos.

Vote Breakdown

Spud eliminated, 5–3–3

Votes for Spud (5): Cody, Kitty, Lorenzo, Scott, Shawn
Votes for Cody (3): Laurie, Pete, Spud
Votes for Scott (3): MacArthur, Sky, Tom

Why Spud died

- Kitty/Scott/Shawn trio stayed locked and pulled Cody + Lorenzo as extra votes.
- Mauhu trio stayed locked but voted Scott, not Spud.
- Pete/Spud lane tried to hit Cody but couldn't gather enough outside support.

Spud becomes the victim because he was the only target with:

- a clean "liability" justification,
- a fresh conflict with an idol-holder (Kitty),
- and not enough locked protection.

ELIMINATED

Spud
Reason label: joint-tribal consensus casualty — got hit by the only bloc that could reach 5 votes without needing idol chaos.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Kitty is running the season's power economy without ever playing an idol.
   She held two idols, anchored an alliance, and shaped the boot—without exposing herself publicly. That's elite advantage management.
2. Cody survived a direct structural strike.
   Pete/Spud/Tom trying to boot Cody is the first real "stop the advantage holder before it becomes live" move. Cody dodged it because he found a new majority faster than the old one could mobilize.
3. Scott being targeted and surviving makes him more dangerous.
   Mauhu's alliance clocked him correctly as a connector. Now Scott knows he's a target, which often pushes players into more aggressive control behavior.
4. MacArthur played the idol holder role correctly by not playing it.
   No one voted for her. She kept the idol and still held her trio together. That's perfect.
5. Spud wasn't voted out for one reason—he was voted out for being the only "easy" target that satisfied multiple blocs.
   Kitty wanted him, Sky wanted him, and he had no idol insurance. Joint tribals punish the player who is "acceptable to everyone."
6. The Cody vs Laurie hatred war is now a ticking bomb that didn't explode yet.
   They both survived, but the relationship hit "extreme hatred." That guarantees a future round where one tries to finish the job—and idols will make it ugly.
7. Naale (immune tribe) quietly built a new power center (Jacques/Taylor/Zoey).
   That trio forming while safe is how returnees win: structure without immediate voting pressure.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Lawa (5) — Cody / Kitty / Laurie / Scott / Shawn

Alliances:

- Lawa Alliance #2: Kitty / Scott / Shawn (core controlling trio)
  Advantages:
- Cody: Legacy (inactive)
- Kitty: Naale Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Idol
  Dynamics:
- Cody ↔ Laurie extreme hatred (ongoing war)
- Scott extremely loyal inside Alliance #2
- Kitty is the season's strongest hidden power holder

Alliances:

- Naale Alliance #2: Jacques / Taylor / Zoey
  Dynamics:
- Carrie vs Zoey conflict still shapes future votes
- Devin disliked by Zoey/Jasmine lanes, but bonded with Carrie/Taylor
- Jacques building structure while safe (classic winner-style pathing)

Mauhu (5) — Lorenzo / MacArthur / Pete / Sky / Tom

Alliances:

- Mauhu Alliance #1: MacArthur / Sky / Tom
  Advantages:
- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol
  Dynamics:
- Pete vs MacArthur rivalry still live
- Lorenzo bonded with Pete but voted Spud with the other lane—survival-first

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Kitty keep both idols secret, or does someone clock the fact that two tribe idols are "missing"?
2. Does Cody finally take a real shot at Laurie (or vice versa), and does Kitty intervene?

3. Mauhu's trio targeted Scott—do they try again, or pivot to Cody now that his Legacy value is known?
4. On Naale, does the Carrie vs Zoey war become the first real Tribal storyline the moment they lose?
5. Will Pete attempt another "old Lawa strike" against Cody, or is he forced to deal with MacArthur first?
6. Does MacArthur's idol create a false sense of safety that lets her overplay into a blindside?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Lawa — “the power tribe is eating itself”

Key ties and fractures:

- Laurie ↔ Cody: mutual extreme hatred (still active)
  Strategic impact: This is now the tribe’s defining axis. Every Lawa vote will be framed as “liability,” but the real engine is a personal war.
- Shawn ↔ Scott: mutual strong bond (upgraded)
  Strategic impact: This becomes the tribe’s true backbone. Strong bond + shared alliance history means they can survive even if Kitty flips.

- Cody ↔ Shawn: small bond and Cody ↔ Scott: small bond and Cody ↔ Kitty: small bond
  Strategic impact: Cody is hated by Laurie, but protected socially by everyone else. That is exactly why Laurie struggles to win the war cleanly.
- Kitty ↔ Shawn: small bond + Kitty ↔ Scott: slight bond
  Strategic impact: Kitty is plugged into the core, which is terrifying given she's holding multiple powers.

Pressure points:

- Laurie ↔ Kitty: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: If Kitty ever decides she doesn't need Laurie, she becomes the easiest "get rid of the annoyance" vote.
- Scott ↔ Laurie: slight bond
  Strategic impact: This is Laurie's only real bridge into the majority. If that bond breaks, she's cooked.

Naale — "returnee structure hardens; Taylor becomes the center"

Key ties and fractures:

- Taylor ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable relationship
  Strategic impact: This is the season's first endgame-grade bond. Unbreakable pairs define merges because they function like a single player with two votes.
- Taylor ↔ Devin: mutual medium bond
  Strategic impact: Taylor is bridging fans + favorites lanes. That makes her both powerful and dangerous: everyone needs her, meaning everyone will eventually want her gone.
- Taylor ↔ Carrie: medium bond and Zoey ↔ Taylor: medium bond
  Strategic impact: Taylor is building a majority web. She's not just "allied," she's central.

Ongoing fracture:

- Zoey ↔ Carrie: mutual medium dislike
  Strategic impact: The tribe still has a standing civil line. Taylor's bonds to both sides are what prevents it from exploding.
- Zoey ↔ Devin: slight dislike and Jasmine ↔ Carrie: slight dislike and Jacques ↔ Carrie: slight dislike
  Strategic impact: Carrie is accumulating negative edges again—she's becoming a future "easy" name if Naale loses.

(Light returnee seasoning: Taylor becoming the hub is classic "favorites adapt fast" behavior—returnees who can link multiple lanes become pre-merge kings, then merge targets.)

Mauhu — “three-vote majority vs two-vote resistance”

Key ties and fractures:

- Sky ↔ MacArthur: mutual medium bond (stronger)
  Strategic impact: This is the stabilizing duo inside Mauhu. Sky gives social calm; MacArthur gives force and decision-making.
- Pete ↔ Lorenzo: mutual medium bond
  Strategic impact: Lorenzo’s only real lifeline. It also explains why the vote isn’t unanimous—Pete refuses to go fully against his buddy.

Conflict pressure:

- Pete ↔ MacArthur: mutual medium dislike
  Strategic impact: This rivalry means Pete will not blindly follow MacArthur even when she has the idol. That’s dangerous for MacArthur long-term.
- MacArthur ↔ Lorenzo: mutual medium dislike and Sky ↔ Lorenzo: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: Lorenzo is socially boxed in: his best bond is Pete, but the tribe’s power lane (MacArthur/Sky/Tom) doesn’t like him.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Lawa

- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive this round; usable at 13 or 6 remaining; must be willed if voted out)
- Kitty: Naale Hidden Immunity Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Hidden Immunity Idol

Strategic impact:
Kitty is still the season’s hidden arsenal. The danger isn’t that she’ll go home—it’s that her tribe becomes so unstable she’s forced to reveal or burn an idol earlier than she wants.

Naale

- No idol in circulation on this tribe (held elsewhere).

Mauhu

- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol (in pocket, playable before votes read)

Reward Challenge — Blind Faith

Winners:

- Lawa wins reward — baked goods, iced tea, milk
- Naale wins reward — chocolate chip cookies

Strategic meaning:
Mauhu loses reward, meaning more stress before immunity. On a 5-person tribe, stress amplifies existing dislike lines—exactly what happens.

Immunity Challenge — Box Car Blues

Over wall → push cube → key retrieval → sandbag carry → slingshot targets.
First two tribes win immunity.

Winners: Lawa and Naale
Loser: Mauhu

Strategic meaning:
Mauhu goes to Tribal with a known idol in the game and a clean majority alliance already formed—classic setup for either a unanimous boot or an idol paranoia misfire.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Lawa (safe, but imploding internally)

- Scott & Shawn find something in common
  Strategic consequence: Their bond was already strong—this reinforces them as the real two-person spine of Lawa.
- Kitty & Shawn have a major fight
  Strategic consequence: This is enormous. Kitty has been playing the middle with power; a major fight exposes her and damages her "I'm everyone's friend" cover.
- Cody & Laurie find something in common (lasting!)
  Strategic consequence: This is the episode's twist knife: the hatred axis softens into functional connection. Even if they still hate each other, finding common ground lowers the odds of a direct "I must vote you out right now" move.
- Kitty leaves Lawa Alliance #2 (loyalty drops to 4)
  Strategic consequence: The power holder is now outside the formal structure. This creates an unstable situation:
  - Scott/Shawn remain tight
  - Cody has bridges
  - Laurie is a wild card
  - Kitty has idols and is now socially exposed

Lawa is safe this round, but it's now primed for a catastrophic Tribal the moment they lose.

Naale (safe, stability increases)

- Jasmine & Taylor find something in common (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This cements Taylor's "hub" status even more. The more Taylor bonds, the more she becomes merge-dangerous.

Mauhu (losing tribe — alliances, idol, and shifting loyalty)

- MacArthur & Pete bond slightly
  Strategic consequence: This is ironic because they also dislike each other. It reads like temporary cooperation… which still matters at Tribal.
- Pete & Tom find something in common
  Strategic consequence: This gives Pete a second lane besides Lorenzo. It's the difference between being isolated and having options.
- Tom leaves Lawa Alliance #1
  Strategic consequence: The old Lawa structure continues to collapse. Tom is choosing immediate tribe reality over old promises—which is usually the correct pre-merge move.
- MacArthur injured but treated, stays
  Strategic consequence: Can become sympathy… or an excuse to cut her later. For now it reinforces her "tough" narrative.

VOTING DYNAMICS (MAUHU)

Individual Targets

- Lorenzo → Sky ("liability" framing)
  Strategic reality: he's trying to break the MacArthur/Sky lane.
- Tom → Lorenzo ("somewhat weak")
  Strategic reality: Tom wants stability and sees Lorenzo as the easiest clean boot.

Group Target

- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur/Sky/Tom) → Lorenzo

Strategic reality:
This is the whole episode. A clean 3-person bloc targets the one player who isn't part of their lane. Pete is the only potential disruptor, and his bond with Lorenzo is not enough to flip the math unless he can recruit Tom or force an idol play.

Final Targets

Lorenzo vs Sky

TRIBAL COUNCIL #5 — Mauhu

Advantages Played

- MacArthur holds Mauhu Idol — NOT played

Strategic consequence:
MacArthur correctly reads she is not in danger and keeps the idol for a bigger moment. Good restraint.

Vote Breakdown

Lorenzo eliminated, 3–2

Votes for Lorenzo (3): MacArthur, Sky, Tom Votes for Sky (2): Lorenzo, Pete

What this reveals

- The Mauhu trio stayed disciplined and did not fracture.
- Pete remains loyal to Lorenzo—but loyalty without numbers is just a protest vote.
- Sky is officially locked into MacArthur's lane now; she's no longer a swing.

ELIMINATED

Lorenzo
Reason label: minority member boot — outnumbered by Mauhu Alliance #1.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Mauhu Alliance #1 executed the cleanest vote possible.
   They removed the outsider and preserved unity. This is how small tribes survive.
2. Pete made the "loyalty vote," but it cost him leverage.
   By refusing to join the majority, Pete signals he's not fully with them. He's now the natural next boot if Mauhu loses again.
3. MacArthur's idol remains the scariest single known factor in the game.
   Because she didn't play it, it stays live for a blindside later—especially at a joint Tribal or swap-merge chaos point.

4. Lawa's real story is not advantages—it's social collapse.
   Kitty leaving the alliance after fighting Shawn is the first time her power position becomes unstable. Two idols don't help if your tribe stops trusting you.
5. Cody vs Laurie shifted from war to détente.
   They still hate each other, but "finding something in common (lasting)" means the vote may shift away from being purely personal—and toward being purely strategic, which is worse for people like Kitty.
6. Naale is building a Taylor-centric machine.
   Unbreakable with Jacques + bonds with Devin/Carrie/Zoey/Jasmine = Taylor is becoming the most connected player on any tribe. That's a merge win condition and a merge target.
7. The season's theme is emerging: power hoarding + alliance discipline beats chaos.
   Kitty hoards idols, MacArthur hoards an idol, Cody holds Legacy—yet the boots are still decided by who can maintain a disciplined voting bloc.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Lawa (5) — Cody / Kitty / Laurie / Scott / Shawn

Alliances:

- Lawa Alliance #2 fractured (Kitty left; Scott/Shawn remain tight)
  Advantages:
- Cody: Legacy (inactive)
- Kitty: Naale Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Idol
  Dynamics:
- Kitty socially exposed after fight with Shawn
- Scott/Shawn strong bond = tribe backbone
- Cody/Laurie détente creates new vote possibilities

Alliances:

- Naale Alliance #2 (Jacques/Taylor/Zoey) active
  Advantages:
- none on this tribe
  Dynamics:
- Taylor hub strengthens (unbreakable with Jacques)
- Carrie still carrying friction with Zoey/Jacques/Jasmine lanes
- Devin has bonds but is disliked by Zoey

Mauhu (4) — MacArthur / Pete / Sky / Tom

Alliances:

- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur/Sky/Tom) controlling trio
  Advantages:
- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol (unplayed)
  Dynamics:
- Pete isolated after loyalty vote
- MacArthur injury could become future framing
- Tom is now fully inside Mauhu power lane

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Pete become the automatic boot if Mauhu loses again, or can he flip Tom using the “MacArthur threat” argument?
2. When does MacArthur’s idol finally get played—does she hold it too long and get blindsided?
3. On Lawa, does Kitty get targeted the moment they lose because she’s socially exposed, even with two idols?
4. Will Scott/Shawn try to flush Kitty’s idol(s) internally before merge, or keep her as an advantage shield?
5. On Naale, does Taylor’s centrality become too obvious—does someone start planning a pre-merge strike?
6. How soon does Cody’s Legacy Advantage timing (13 remaining) start shaping vote logic across tribes?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Twist: Two-Tribe Re-Swap + Exile Package

The three-tribe phase ends immediately: everyone is randomly reassigned into two tribes, and one castaway draws no buff and goes to Exile.

Pete is exiled.
He's offered three advantage options:

- Extra vote
- Fake idol kit
- Challenge advantage for new tribe

Pete chooses the Extra Vote (usable at one Tribal up to Final 6).

Strategic impact:
This is huge because Pete was already "minority-coded" on Mauhu. Exile gives him something that matters without needing social capital: a vote multiplier. The danger is that he returns as an obvious "advantage holder," which can paint a target on him unless he hides it perfectly.

Tribe / Camp Relationships (Re-Swap Baseline)

New Lawa (Carrie, Cody, Jasmine, Kitty, MacArthur, Taylor, Zoey) — "power stacked, but hatred stacked harder"

Key ties and fractures:

- Zoey ↔ Carrie: mutual extreme hatred (escalated to max)
  Strategic impact: This is not salvageable. On a 7-person tribe, extreme hatred instantly creates two camps and makes "tribe strength" excuses irrelevant. The vote becomes: which side can build a majority first?
- Taylor ↔ Carrie: mutual medium bond
  Strategic impact: Taylor is the swing of the season, and she's leaning Carrie. This bond matters because Taylor was also tightly connected to Zoey previously—so her choice decides who dies.
- Taylor ↔ Jasmine: mutual medium bond + Zoey ↔ Taylor: mutual medium bond
  Strategic impact: Taylor has both hands on both sides of the war. That makes her the kingmaker… and also the most dangerous person on the beach long-term.

- Kitty ↔ Cody: mutual small bond + Jasmine ↔ Cody: mutual small bond
  Strategic impact: Cody is socially safe despite being a future Legacy threat. In a tribe full of big personalities, being “liked a little by everyone” is elite survival value.
- MacArthur ↔ Carrie: mutual small bond
  Strategic impact: This matters because MacArthur has an idol and is a decisive vote. Her bonding with Carrie suggests where her instincts lean in the Carrie/Zoey war.

Small cracks:

- Zoey ↔ Kitty: mutual slight dislike + Jasmine ↔ Carrie: mutual slight dislike
  Strategic impact: These are potential flip levers, but they’re too small to override extreme hatred unless the vote gets messy.

New Naale (Devin, Jacques, Laurie, Scott, Shawn, Sky, Tom) — “the unbreakable duo becomes a superpower”

Key ties and fractures:

- Scott ↔ Shawn: mutual unbreakable relationship
  Strategic impact: This is the most dangerous bond in the game right now. An unbreakable pair on a 7-person tribe is basically a permanent two-vote bloc that forces everyone to negotiate around them.
- Laurie ↔ Devin: mutual medium dislike
  Strategic impact: Laurie continues collecting enemies across swaps. She’s becoming “bootable” because multiple people can justify voting her without fear of backlash.
- Tom ↔ Sky: mutual small bond + Sky ↔ Jacques: mutual small bond
  Strategic impact: Sky is building bridges across lanes. That’s how you survive under a dominant duo: become useful to everyone.
- Jacques ↔ Devin: mutual mild dislike + Scott ↔ Jacques: mutual slight dislike Strategic impact: Jacques is sitting in a danger pocket: disliked by the duo’s closest orbit (Scott) and not aligned with Devin. If Naale loses once, Jacques could become the “smart threat” cut.
- Sky feels slight dislike toward Shawn Strategic impact: Tiny now, but it matters because Shawn is tied to Scott. Disliking one half of an unbreakable pair can become fatal if that pair decides you’re “not with us.”

SECRET ADVANTAGES

New Lawa

- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive this round; usable at 13 or 6 remaining; must be willed if voted out)
- Kitty: Naale Hidden Immunity Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Hidden Immunity Idol
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol

Strategic impact:
This tribe is absurdly loaded: three separate major advantages across three people. In a normal season, that would create instant paranoia—but the Carrie/Zoey hatred war gives everyone a simpler story than "idol hunting": pick a side, win the numbers.

New Naale

No new advantages revealed here this episode.
(But note: the exile advantage exists off-tribe with Pete.)

Exile

- Pete: Extra Vote (usable once, up to Final 6)

Immunity Challenge — Cargo Salvage

Dive + platform climb → rope monkey-bar traverse → load heavy puzzle pieces → drag sled up hill with logs → barrel puzzle finish.

Loser: Lawa

Strategic meaning:
The most advantage-stacked tribe goes to Tribal immediately. That's perfect chaos design: idols + hatred + fresh swap = someone misplays… unless they choose the cleanest target and hoard power.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Lawa (goes to Tribal)

- Carrie impresses the rest of the team
  Strategic consequence: This matters because she's one half of the hatred war. Being impressive removes "liability" arguments and forces the vote to be purely social/strategic.

- Cody & MacArthur find something in common (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: This is huge because MacArthur has an idol. Cody bonding with her gives him insurance against a future Legacy-driven blindside.
- Zoey rests at camp
  Strategic consequence: Neutral on paper, but in a hatred war, resting can be spun as “not contributing” if people need a justification. It didn’t matter this round because the vote was already set.

Alliance Formation: the real power move

Lawa Alliance #3 forms (Strength 6): Carrie (L6) / Cody (L6) / Kitty (L5) / MacArthur (L6)

Strategic consequence:
This instantly becomes the controlling core. It’s four people with solid loyalty numbers and most of the game’s advantages. On a 7-person tribe, a locked 4 is a guillotine.

Target matrix (Lawa)

Individual targets:

- Zoey → Carrie (liability framing, but fueled by hatred)
- Carrie → Zoey (extreme despise)
- Taylor → Cody (liability framing)
- MacArthur → Taylor (slightly negative opinion)

Group targets:

- Naale Alliance #2 remnants (Taylor/Zoey) → Carrie
  Strategic reality: This is Zoey trying to pull Taylor into the anti-Carrie lane.
- Lawa Alliance #3 → Zoey
  Strategic reality: The new core chooses the cleanest boot: remove the person in open war with their leader and avoid idol chaos.

Final targets: Carrie vs Zoey

Naale (immune)

- Devin & Jacques minor disagreement
  Strategic consequence: Tiny now, but it reinforces that Devin/Jacques will not naturally work together—useful for Scott/Shawn to exploit later.
- Devin impresses the rest of the team
  Strategic consequence: Devin remains “useful,” which is often the best protection under an unbreakable pair regime.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #6 — Lawa

Advantages in the room (NOT played)

- Cody: Legacy (inactive)
- Kitty: Naale Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Idol
- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol
  No idols played.

Strategic consequence:
This was a discipline vote. They didn't need power because they had numbers. Saving idols here is the correct macro play.

Vote Breakdown

Zoey eliminated, 5–2

Votes for Zoey (5): Carrie, Cody, Kitty, MacArthur, Taylor
Votes for Carrie (2): Jasmine, Zoey

Key twist in the vote

- Taylor flips. She "was supposed to vote for Carrie but disagreed" and votes Zoey instead.
  Strategic meaning: Taylor chose the side with structural power (Alliance #3) rather than the side driven by emotion (Zoey). That is a cold, correct move—and it makes Taylor even more central.
- Jasmine votes Carrie.
  Strategic meaning: Jasmine is signaling she won't blindly follow the new power core. She's planting a flag: I'm not your number.

ELIMINATED

Zoey
Reason label: swap-war casualty — lost the numbers battle against a freshly formed advantage-heavy core.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Alliance #3 was formed perfectly: it united social control and advantage control.
   Carrie + Cody + Kitty + MacArthur is not just a majority—it's a resource empire. They can survive bad swaps, joint tribals, and merge chaos.

2. The Carrie/Zoey war forced a simple vote, which allowed idols to stay pocketed.
   When the target is obvious and emotional, smart players hoard power. Kitty and MacArthur did exactly that.
3. Taylor made the defining move of the pre-merge.
   She had the social permission to vote Carrie (bonded with Zoey, had an out). Instead, she voted Zoey to align with the controlling core. That keeps her safe now—but paints her as a kingmaker later.
4. Jasmine's dissent vote matters.
   Two votes landed on Carrie—Jasmine + Zoey. Zoey is gone, meaning Jasmine is now the only person who openly opposed the core. If Lawa loses again, Jasmine is in danger unless she repairs fast.
5. Cody's Legacy Advantage is becoming a looming merge storyline, but he's insulated for now.
   He has bonds with Kitty, Shawn (past), and now MacArthur (lasting). That's the web you want before a Legacy window opens.
6. Naale's unbreakable pair (Scott/Shawn) just got stronger because they didn't have to reveal anything.
   While Lawa burned social capital, Naale stayed calm, won immunity, and quietly let Devin/Jacques friction grow—perfect conditions for Scott/Shawn to rule when they finally attend Tribal.
7. Pete's exile extra vote is a midgame grenade.
   It's not flashy now, but in a 7–7 merge or tight split, one extra vote wins seasons. The question is whether Pete can hide it long enough to use it.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Lawa (6) — Carrie / Cody / Jasmine / Kitty / MacArthur / Taylor

Alliances:

- Lawa Alliance #3: Carrie / Cody / Kitty / MacArthur (core)
  Advantages:
- Cody: Legacy (inactive)
- Kitty: Naale Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Idol
- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol
  Dynamics:
- Jasmine is the visible dissentor after voting Carrie
- Taylor is now aligned with the power core but remains socially connected outward
- Kitty/MacArthur are hoarding idols successfully (so far)

Naale (7) — Devin / Jacques / Laurie / Scott / Shawn / Sky / Tom

Alliances:

- Scott/Shawn unbreakable duo (de facto ruling lane)
  Advantages:
- none revealed on-tribe
  Dynamics:
- Laurie disliked by Devin; Jacques disliked by Scott; Sky bridging multiple lanes
- Devin is useful and impressing tribe—likely safe unless targeted by duo strategy

Exile / Out of Tribe

- Pete: Extra Vote (one-time, usable up to Final 6)

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. After Jasmine's dissent, does the Lawa core cut her next—or does she get pulled back in as a needed number?
2. Can Taylor keep playing "connected to everyone" without becoming the obvious merge target?
3. When will Kitty or MacArthur be forced to actually play an idol—do they hold too long and get blindsided?
4. Does Cody's Legacy Advantage start making people plan a pre-window blindside?
5. On Naale, who becomes the first sacrifice if the Scott/Shawn duo needs an easy boot: Laurie, Jacques, or Devin?
6. Can Pete re-enter socially with his extra vote hidden, or does exile automatically label him as "advantage guy" and paint a target?

Perfect, this is a huge episode narratively, so I'll go full story mode while staying locked to every BrantSteele detail.

Story

The episode opens like a Total Drama montage: dramatic zoom-ins, stormy music, and flashbacks of Zoey's blindside. Lawa returns to camp feeling too powerful for a pre-merge tribe. They don't even pretend to hide it anymore—this is their beach.

Carrie walks through camp like a queen who knows she's safe.

Taylor sticks to her side, literally and strategically. Their relationship is officially labeled unbreakable, and the camera makes sure we see them whispering constantly.

MacArthur hovers close to Carrie too. Not subtle. Not apologetic. Just presence.

Meanwhile, Pete arrives back from Exile and come to replace zoey in Lawa, quietly slipping into camp with an extra vote hidden like contraband. No one knows. And that's how he wants it.

Confessional — Pete:
"Everyone out here thinks alliances are about trust. Nah. They're about leverage. And I've got leverage."

Tribe Relationships

Lawa — "The Royal Court"

- Taylor ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable relationship
  They don't strategize about each other. They strategize with each other.
  Strategic impact: This is now the strongest social pair in the game.
- MacArthur → Carrie: unbreakable bond + Carrie → MacArthur: strong bond
  MacArthur treats Carrie like her chosen general.
  Strategic impact: Carrie has muscle and loyalty behind her.
- Cody ↔ Carrie: strong bond
  Cody's always good at this—attaching himself to power.
  Strategic impact: Cody is protected socially and structurally.
- MacArthur ↔ Cody: medium bond
  That "we're different but compatible" duo energy.
  Strategic impact: Keeps Cody safe even if Carrie ever gets targeted.

- Taylor ↔ Pete: medium bond
  This is dangerous because Pete has power and Taylor is central.
  Strategic impact: Pete is closer to the throne than anyone realizes.

Tension:

- Pete ↔ Carrie: mild dislike
  Under the smiles, they don't trust each other.
  Strategic impact: If power shifts, these two will absolutely turn.

Naale — "Two Kings and a Court"

- Scott ↔ Shawn: unbreakable relationship
  They walk into every conversation together.
  Strategic impact: Everyone else is negotiating around them, not with them.
- Shawn ↔ Devin: medium bond
  Devin thinks he's safe.
  He is… for now.
- Jacques ↔ Devin: mild dislike
  Jacques clocks Devin as a threat immediately.
  Strategic impact: Jacques is quietly sharpening a knife.
- Sky ↔ Scott: small bond + Sky ↔ Jacques: small bond
  Sky is socially everywhere.
  Strategic impact: Sky becomes swing potential.
- Laurie ↔ Devin: slight dislike
  Laurie never fully trusts him.
  Strategic impact: Devin's base is shakier than he realizes.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Lawa

- Cody — Legacy Advantage (inactive)
- Kitty — Naale Idol + Lawa Idol
- MacArthur — Mauhu Idol
- Pete — Extra Vote

Story Impact

Lawa is a nuclear stockpile. Three idols and an extra vote… and nobody's even sweating yet.

Reward Challenge — Dulcimer Stomp

Story

It's chaotic, physical, and goofy—classic Total Drama energy. People slip, balls bounce wrong, hosts laugh.

Lawa dominates.

They win ten pizzas and cold soda.
The camera zooms in on Carrie lifting a slice like a crown.

Confessional — Carrie:
"Nothing tastes better than power. Except maybe pepperoni."

Immunity Challenge — Plunge, Pop, Pull

The word to spell: METAMORPHOSIS.
Appropriate, because this season keeps shedding skins.

Lawa wins again.

Two challenge wins in a row.
They walk back to camp laughing.

Naale… doesn't.

Lawa (safe but imploding)

Story

Winning should make people calm.

Instead, it makes them sloppy.

Cody and Jasmine have a small fight.
Not huge, but cracks show.

Then chaos.

Kitty and Pete have a MAJOR fight.
Voices raised. Everyone hears it.

Carrie and Pete have a MAJOR fight.
Now it's personal.

Pete walks off, pissed.

Kitty is furious.

Carrie is cold.

Confessional — Kitty:
"Pete thinks he's slick. But slick people slip."

Then the big moment:

Kitty leaves Lawa Alliance #3.

The alliance that ran the tribe?
Cracks.

Now it's:

- Carrie
- Cody
- MacArthur
- Taylor
  …and Kitty on the outside with two idols.

That's not a betrayal.

That's a warning.

Naale (goes to Tribal)

Story

Naale gets quiet.

Jacques suddenly bonds strongly with Shawn.

Jacques rests at camp.
He's conserving energy like a villain charging up.

Targets

Individual:

- Jacques targets Devin (strong dislike)
- Tom targets Shawn
- Sky targets Laurie

But the alliances decide:

- Scott/Shawn duo want Devin out
- Sky/Tom want Shawn out

Final targets: Devin vs Shawn

The tribe is split.

Scott and Shawn believe they control it.

They're about to prove it.

Story

Tribal feels tense.

No advantages played.

Everyone stares at Scott and Shawn like:
"Is this your move?"

Votes come in.

Devin votes Shawn.

Sky and Tom vote Shawn.

But Scott and Shawn stay ice cold.

They pull numbers.

Vote Breakdown

Devin eliminated, 4–3

Votes for Devin:
Jacques, Laurie, Scott, Shawn

Votes for Shawn:
Devin, Sky, Tom

Shawn doesn't even flinch.

Scott smirks.

Confessional — Scott:
"King stays king."

ELIMINATED

Devin
Reason: Outnumbered by the Scott/Shawn power duo.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Scott & Shawn just proved they run Naale.
   They took a 3–3 split and won it anyway.
   That's dominance.
2. Jacques made the smartest move of his season.
   By targeting Devin, he aligns with power instead of fighting it.
3. Sky and Tom exposed themselves.
   Voting Shawn puts a target on both of them going forward.
4. Lawa is cracking from the inside.
   Kitty leaving the alliance is HUGE.
   Two idols + no loyalty = chaos incoming.
5. Pete is dangerous and nobody knows it yet.
   Extra vote + proximity to Taylor = future blindside engine.
6. Carrie's court is strong… but brittle.
   Too many egos. Too much power.
   Empires fall from inside.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Lawa (7)

Carrie, Cody, Jasmine, Kitty, MacArthur, Pete, Taylor

Alliances:

- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur/Taylor)
- Kitty is now independent with 2 idols
  Advantages:

- Kitty — 2 idols
- MacArthur — idol
- Pete — extra vote
- Cody — Legacy (inactive)

Dynamics:

- Carrie/Taylor power duo
- Pete vs Carrie tension
- Kitty on the outside with nuclear power

Naale (6)

Jacques, Laurie, Scott, Shawn, Sky, Tom

Alliances:

- Scott/Shawn unbreakable core

Dynamics:

- Jacques aligned with power
- Sky/Tom exposed
- Laurie floating in danger

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Scott/Shawn go after Sky and Tom next for daring to target Shawn?
2. Will Kitty finally use her idols aggressively now that she's outside the core?
3. Can Pete weaponize his extra vote before merge chaos?
4. Does Taylor stay loyal to Carrie… or start planning her own endgame?
5. Is Jacques now Scott's real strategic partner?
6. When Lawa finally loses, does the vote explode into a multi-idol disaster?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — “the merge hits like a Total Drama season finale… except it’s Day 1”

The merge doesn’t feel like a celebration. It feels like the moment everyone’s grudges finally get to breathe.

The big story coming in: power pairs everywhere + a ridiculous advantage vault + one tribe war that never ended.

Key ties and fractures:

- Taylor ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable relationship
  Strategic impact: Taylor is Carrie’s social armor at merge. If one gets targeted, the other can rally numbers instantly.
- Cody ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable relationship
  Strategic impact: Carrie enters merge with a second locked partner. That makes her less “easy first jury” and more “core power center.”
- Taylor ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable relationship
  Strategic impact: This is the merge’s most dangerous bridge: it links old tribe lanes AND strategist lanes. Taylor is now the season’s biggest connector.
- Scott ↔ Shawn: mutual unbreakable relationship
  Strategic impact: This is the most feared duo in the game. Everyone knows it. Nobody wants to be the first person they choose to “make an example of.”
- MacArthur → Carrie: unbreakable + Carrie → MacArthur: strong bond
  Strategic impact: Carrie basically has a “bodyguard with an idol.” That’s massive—MacArthur can play messy and still survive.
- Sky ↔ MacArthur: mutual medium bond
  Strategic impact: Mauhu’s old structure still matters. Sky and MacArthur can move as a mini-bloc even at merge.

Active hatred line:

- Shawn → Kitty: extreme hatred + Kitty → Shawn: strong dislike
  Strategic impact: This is the merge’s most volatile feud and it’s not a quiet one. If Kitty ever loses protection, Shawn will push her name hard. If Shawn is vulnerable, Kitty will take the shot immediately.

Other key tension:

- Laurie ↔ Cody: mutual medium dislike
  Strategic impact: Their earlier “war” has cooled from extreme hatred to medium dislike, but it’s still structural. Laurie will always be tempted to hit Cody—especially now that his Legacy is live.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Campers

- Cody: Legacy Advantage (ACTIVE this round — can be used at 13 remaining)
  Strategic impact: Cody's threat level quietly spikes at merge. People don't vote someone out just for having Legacy, but they do factor it into "why not him?" conversations.
- Kitty: Naale Hidden Immunity Idol
- Kitty: Lawa Hidden Immunity Idol
  Strategic impact: Kitty has two idols AND now wins immunity. She enters merge as the safest person on earth… which makes her terrifying.
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol
  Strategic impact: MacArthur can swing votes with confidence. Even if she's targeted, she can survive—meaning her alliance offers are worth more.
- Pete: Extra Vote
  Strategic impact: Pete has the perfect merge tool: one vote can flip a close pile-up. The scary part is nobody's forcing him to reveal it yet.
- Campers Hidden Immunity Idol: not currently hidden
  Strategic impact: Idol is already in circulation (held by someone / no new idol hunt payoff). Merge idols aren't being replenished—power is concentrated, not spread.

CHALLENGES

Immunity Challenge — Keep on Your Toes

Stand on toe-perches inside a frame, brace a block on your head using a board overhead.

Winner: Kitty

Strategic meaning:
Kitty winning immunity at the exact merge where she's already holding two idols is the ultimate "you can't touch me" moment. It forces the vote to turn outward: instead of flushing Kitty, players have to choose a political casualty.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Campers (Merge camp day turns into a war room)

- Carrie and Cody have a major fight
  Strategic consequence: This is huge. They're listed as an unbreakable pair, yet they still blow up. That means their relationship is real—but unstable. The merge pressure is testing their trust instantly.

- Pete and Tom minor disagreement
  Strategic consequence: Small, but it matters because Tom later breaks from Mauhu's formal structure. These tiny frictions are often the pretext for "I'm voting my way tonight."
- Tom leaves Mauhu Alliance #1
  Strategic consequence: This is one of the merge's biggest signals: Tom is no longer automatically loyal to MacArthur/Sky. That reduces their vote control and makes Tom a true free agent.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets (merge chaos version)

- Kitty → Shawn (extremely despises him)
  Reality: Kitty wants the feud dead. Immunity means she can't be hit back this round.
- Carrie → Pete (strong dislike)
  Reality: Carrie sees Pete as a destabilizer and a threat to her control lane (and she's not wrong).
- Laurie → Cody (strong dislike)
  Reality: Laurie still wants Cody gone, and now Cody's Legacy is active—making the temptation stronger.
- Jacques → MacArthur (slightly negative opinion)
  Reality: This looks mild, but in merge votes mild is enough. Strategists don't need hatred—just opportunity.
- Sky → Jasmine (slightly negative opinion)
  Reality: Jasmine is a leadership threat and social anchor. Sky targeting her is the classic "remove the stable player before they become jury-loved."
- Cody → Sky (least connected)
  Reality: This is a "numbers" target—Sky is outside Cody's core.

Group Targets (where the real vote forms)

- Lawa Alliance #1 (Pete/Taylor) → Jasmine
  Strategic reality: Pete is building a merge lane that removes strong leaders first. Jasmine is respected, connected, and dangerous at jury.
- Lawa Alliance #2 (Scott/Shawn) → Taylor
  Strategic reality: The duo recognizes Taylor as the ultimate bridge. If Taylor stays, she can assemble a coalition to break them later.
- Naale Alliance #2 (Jacques/Taylor) → MacArthur
  Strategic reality: Jacques wants to weaken Carrie's shield and eliminate an idol-holder before idols decide the midgame.

- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur/Sky) → Jasmine
  Strategic reality: Mauhu agrees: Jasmine is a threat. This is cross-tribe consensus forming.
- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur) → Pete
  Strategic reality: Carrie wants Pete out badly—and this is her first merge power test: can she actually remove the guy who annoys her?

Final Realistic Targets

Jasmine / Taylor / MacArthur

This becomes a true "three-lane merge vote":

- Jasmine lane: "remove the respected leader"
- Taylor lane: "remove the super-connector"
- MacArthur lane: "remove the idol-backed shield"

TRIBAL COUNCIL #8 — Merge Tribal (First Jury Seat)

Advantages in the room (NONE played)

- Kitty: immunity necklace + 2 idols
- MacArthur: idol
- Pete: extra vote
- Cody: Legacy (active)

No one plays anything.

Strategic consequence: Everyone hoards power. This vote becomes about coalition discipline, not advantage fireworks—which is rare with this many toys in the room.

Vote Breakdown

Jasmine eliminated, 7–4–2
Votes for Jasmine (7): Carrie, Cody, Laurie, MacArthur, Pete, Sky, Tom
Votes for MacArthur (4): Jacques, Jasmine, Kitty, Taylor
Votes for Taylor (2): Scott, Shawn

What this vote actually means:

- The "Jasmine lane" was the only lane that could hit 7 without needing advantages.
- The anti-MacArthur bloc existed, but wasn't big enough.

- Scott/Shawn fired a warning shot at Taylor—only two votes, but a loud message: "We see you."

ELIMINATED

Jasmine
Placement: 8th voted out / 1st member of the jury
Reason label: merge consensus leadership cut — respected, broadly connected, and easy to justify without exposing deeper alliances.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Jasmine became the classic "merge peace offering" boot.
   Multiple groups wanted different targets, so they settled on the one everyone could justify: the strong leader with social capital.
2. Scott/Shawn's Taylor votes were intentional intimidation.
   They didn't have numbers to kill her, but they marked her as "future priority." That's a power move: declare your enemy without risking your plan.
3. Jacques/Taylor tried to strike MacArthur and failed — but the attempt reveals the midgame battlefield.
   That 4-vote pile shows a real bloc exists. It's not enough yet, but it's a blueprint for the next vote.
4. Kitty is absurdly safe, but her vote exposes her lane.
   Kitty voted MacArthur, not Jasmine—meaning Kitty is not riding with the majority structure. Even immune, she's choosing sides.
5. Carrie and Cody fighting right before voting together is peak Total Drama energy.
   It shows their pair is real, but volatile—like "we argue, then we run the game anyway."
6. Pete survived despite being a major target — and that's terrifying.
   Carrie wanted Pete out. The fact that she couldn't do it means Pete has deeper protection than people realize… and he still has an extra vote.
7. Nobody playing an idol at the first merge tribal is a huge tell: everyone expects bigger wars later.
   This cast is saving ammo. That means the next few episodes are where idols and extra votes will actually explode.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Campers (12 Remaining)

Power blocs showing:

- Majority merge pile (Jasmine boot): Carrie / Cody / MacArthur / Pete / Sky / Tom + Laurie
- MacArthur-target bloc: Jacques / Taylor / Kitty (+ Jasmine before she left)
- Duo threat lane: Scott / Shawn (openly against Taylor)

Advantages active:

- Kitty: 2 idols
- MacArthur: idol
- Pete: extra vote
- Cody: Legacy (still his, now that it wasn't used)
- Merge idol not in circulation as a new hunt

Core dynamics:

- Scott/Shawn vs Taylor is now public.
- Kitty vs Shawn is personal and active.
- Carrie wants Pete out and failed — grudges don't disappear at merge.

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Scott/Shawn double down and go full force at Taylor next?
2. Does Taylor retaliate by assembling the "anti-duo coalition" using her Jacques bond and Carrie bridge?
3. Is MacArthur now in danger after receiving 4 votes — does she play her idol soon?
4. Does Kitty finally take a shot at Shawn now that she has immunity credibility and two idols as backup?
5. Pete dodged the boot—does he spend the extra vote offensively, or keep it as final-six insurance?
6. With Jasmine gone, who becomes the new "jury threat" everyone agrees on next?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — "everyone agrees on one thing: Kitty has to go… which is exactly why Kitty becomes untouchable"

After Jasmine's unanimous-ish merge boot, the game doesn't calm down—it sharpens. The cast settles into a very Total Drama merge rhythm: two power duos, one super-connector, and one idol queen everyone is terrified to anger.

Key bonds that define the board:

- Carrie ↔ Taylor: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: This is the social spine of the merge. Even when the house flips, they don't.
- Taylor ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: Taylor is still the season's bridge—she can reach "strategy world" through Jacques and "social world" through Carrie. That's why Scott/Shawn fear her long-term.
- Scott ↔ Shawn: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: The most stable duo in the game. They don't need a big alliance to be dangerous—they just need chaos, and they can surf it.
- MacArthur → Carrie: unbreakable + Carrie → MacArthur: strong bond
  Strategic impact: Carrie's shield is also a weapon. If you take a shot at Carrie, MacArthur can blow up your plan with an idol.
- Sky ↔ MacArthur: mutual strong bond
  Strategic impact: Mauhu's old lane has evolved into a real merge bloc—Sky isn't a floater anymore, she's attached to power.

Active feud (the episode's fuse):

- Shawn → Kitty: extreme hatred + Kitty → Shawn: strong dislike
  Strategic impact: This is no longer "tension." It's mutual win condition. If one is vulnerable, the other pushes hard.

And the "quiet but dangerous" line:

- Laurie → Cody: strong dislike
  Strategic impact: Laurie still wants Cody's head on a spike—especially now that Cody's been in multiple power structures and has the Legacy advantage sitting in his pocket.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Campers

- Kitty: Naale Hidden Immunity Idol

- Kitty: Lawa Hidden Immunity Idol
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol
- Pete: Extra Vote
- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive this round)

Strategic impact:
This merge is basically Survivor meets Total Drama—everyone is playing social chess, but the board has five loaded weapons on it. And the scariest part is: the person most targeted (Kitty) holds the most protection.

CHALLENGES

Reward Challenge — New School

Two groups of six race through water retrieval → hang puzzle pieces → carry log → finish puzzle.

Group #1 wins reward: Carrie / Cody / Laurie / Pete / Scott / Shawn
Reward: Marshall's lounge feast (burgers)

Strategic meaning:
This reward doesn't just feed them—it locks a pre-tribal conversation space. Group #1 gets private bonding time, while Group #2 is left stewing at camp.

Immunity Challenge — Get a Grip

Hang from a pole; last person standing wins.

Winner: Taylor

Strategic meaning:
Taylor was already the season's connector. Immunity makes her the safe "center piece," forcing everyone to aim at either:

1. the idol queen (Kitty), or
2. the guy with an extra vote (Pete), who can swing a pile-up.

Campers

- MacArthur impresses the rest of the team
  Strategic consequence: MacArthur is becoming more than "chaos muscle." If people respect her, they stop viewing her as disposable—especially dangerous when she already has an idol.

- Cody and Jacques find something in common
  Strategic consequence: This is subtle but important: it weakens Scott's "Jacques is an outsider strategist" argument. The more bridges Jacques has, the harder he is to isolate.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets

- Shawn → Kitty (extreme despise)
- Kitty → Shawn (extreme despise)
- Laurie → Cody
- Carrie → Pete
- Scott → Jacques

Even at merge, it's still personal—because personal is strategy in Total Drama.

Group Targets (the real lanes)

Three separate alliances independently choose the same target: Kitty.

- Lawa Alliance #1 (Pete/Taylor) → Kitty
- Lawa Alliance #2 (Scott/Shawn) → Kitty
- Naale Alliance #2 (Jacques/Taylor) → Kitty

Strategic reality:
When everyone agrees on a target, it's usually a clean boot… unless the target is holding a nuclear arsenal.

The counter-lane forms on Pete:

- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur/Sky) → Pete
- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur) → Pete

Final Targets: Kitty vs Pete

True story logic:
It becomes a straight-up merge dilemma:

- Vote Kitty = "remove the idol queen before she runs the season."
- Vote Pete = "remove the extra-vote swing and weaken Taylor's other lane."

TRIBAL COUNCIL #9 — Merge Tribal (Idol Night)

Advantages Played

- Pete uses the Extra Vote → Pete votes twice
  Strategic consequence: Pete tries to brute-force the Kitty boot and prove he's still a power broker after surviving last episode.
- Kitty plays the Naale Hidden Immunity Idol on herself
  Strategic consequence: Kitty refuses to gamble. She reads the room correctly: the majority is coming for her.
- Kitty plays the Lawa Hidden Immunity Idol on Scott
  Strategic consequence: This is the killer move. Kitty doesn't just save herself—she creates an idol firewall that protects Scott, one of the two people most capable of driving a Kitty boot in the future.

No other idols played (MacArthur holds hers).

Vote Breakdown

Votes originally cast:

- Kitty receives 8 votes — all cancelled
  (Jacques, Laurie, Pete, Pete, Scott, Shawn, Taylor, Tom)
- Pete receives 5 votes — and they count
  (Carrie, Cody, Kitty, MacArthur, Sky)

Result: Pete eliminated, 5–0 (effective), Kitty survives with 8 votes cancelled.

What the vote says:
This wasn't "Kitty got lucky." This was Kitty winning the episode.

She forced the entire tribe to show their hands, then erased the votes like they never happened.

ELIMINATED

Pete
Placement: 9th voted out / 2nd member of the jury
Reason label: collateral damage of an idol firewall — the only viable alternate target once Kitty became immune.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Kitty just pulled the cleanest "merge idol firewall" play possible.
   Saving herself was expected. Saving Scott is what turns it into a strategic masterpiece: she protected a powerful duo's half without being in their duo.
2. Pete's extra vote backfired catastrophically.
   He revealed his trump card and still went home. That's the worst-case scenario: spend power, gain nothing, become jury.
3. The entire cast just exposed their voting lanes.
   Kitty now knows exactly who tried to kill her: Jacques, Laurie, Pete, Scott, Shawn, Taylor, Tom.
   And she knows who saved Pete over Kitty: nobody—because she erased that option.
4. Scott/Shawn have a new problem: they showed their hand AND got protected by the person they hate.
   Shawn hates Kitty. But Kitty just saved Scott. That creates a twisted dynamic:
   Kitty can claim she "didn't want Scott to go," while Shawn wants her dead.
   That's a conflict you can exploit.
5. MacArthur played perfectly by doing nothing.
   She voted Pete, kept her idol, and watched Kitty burn two idols. MacArthur is now the only person with an idol left… and the cast will realize it soon.
6. Taylor's immunity kept her off the chopping block, but she's becoming merge-central in too many alliances.
   She's tied to Pete (now gone), Jacques, and Carrie. She's the bridge everyone will eventually want to cut.
7. This episode creates a new "post-idol" phase of the season.
   Kitty is still alive… but she's now down two idols, meaning next time people can actually take the shot.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Campers (11 Remaining)

Jury: Jasmine, Pete

Alliances (still on paper):

- Lawa Alliance #1: Pete/Taylor (Pete gone — effectively dead or Taylor repurposes it)
- Lawa Alliance #2: Scott/Shawn
- Naale Alliance #2: Jacques/Taylor
- Mauhu Alliance #1: MacArthur/Sky
- Lawa Alliance #3: Carrie/Cody/MacArthur

Advantages now:

- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol (still held)

- Cody: Legacy (inactive this round; still owned)
- Kitty: no idols left (both played)

Dynamics to watch:

- Kitty vs Shawn is now fully open warfare.
- Scott/Shawn got saved indirectly—do they accept it or retaliate?
- MacArthur is quietly the most dangerous player now: idol + bonds + respect.

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. With Kitty's idols gone, does the tribe immediately try to finish her off—especially Shawn?
2. Does Scott turn the "Kitty saved me" moment into a secret shield, or does he stick with Shawn's hatred?
3. Does MacArthur become the new #1 target now that she's the only idol holder left?
4. Taylor lost Pete—does she consolidate around Jacques, Carrie, or both?
5. Laurie still wants Cody—does she finally get numbers now that the merge vote lines are exposed?
6. Does Cody's Legacy being inactive make him temporarily safer… or just an easier "why not him" boot?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — "after Idol Night, the merge resets into two duos, one bridge, and one feud nobody can ignore"

The morning after Kitty's idol firewall play, the camp feels like a Total Drama confessional waiting room: everyone's polite, everyone's tense, and everyone is silently thinking "who's the next headline?"

The structure is clear even before the challenge:

- Scott ↔ Shawn: unbreakable
  Strategic impact: still the most solid voting duo left. Even when they're wrong, they're coordinated—so they're never fully out.
- Taylor ↔ Carrie: unbreakable and Taylor ↔ Jacques: unbreakable
  Strategic impact: Taylor remains the merge's social bridge. She can walk into "Carrie world" and "strategy world" without changing her tone.
- Sky ↔ MacArthur: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: Mauhu isn't "old tribe loyalty" anymore—it's a real partnership. Sky gives MacArthur social smoothing; MacArthur gives Sky intimidation.
- MacArthur ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: Carrie's best protection is a player who literally holds an idol and doesn't mind making a scene.

And the episode's giant neon sign:

- Kitty ↔ Shawn: mutual extreme hatred
  Strategic impact: after Episode 9, this isn't survivable long-term. The merge cannot keep two people who openly want each other dead and keep stability. One of them is getting cut the moment the numbers allow it.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Campers

- Campers Hidden Immunity Idol: hidden (in play, unknown holder)
- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive this round)
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol
- Carrie finds a Vote Steal (usable up to Final 5)

Strategic impact:
The advantage economy shifts hard this episode:

- Kitty has no idols left after last round.
- MacArthur becomes the only known idol holder now.
- Carrie quietly becomes dangerous: Vote Steal is the kind of tool that wins a merge swing vote without needing an idol.

Reward Challenge — O-Black Water

Two teams of five run the course → dive for grappling hook → secure rings.

Groups

- Group 1: Jacques / Scott / Sky / Taylor / Tom
- Group 2: Cody / Kitty / Laurie / MacArthur / Shawn
- Carrie sits out (cannot win reward)

Winner: Group 2 — picnic at the Yasawa Islands
Bonus: Carrie finds a Secret Advantage at the challenge → Vote Steal

Strategic meaning:
Group 2 gets fed and gets private time—huge when the vote is likely to revolve around Kitty vs Shawn again. Meanwhile Carrie, sidelined, does the most Survivor thing possible: hunts power instead of food.

Immunity Challenge — Got a Hunch

Stack blocks on unstable table, pull rope to balance, spell IMMUNITY.

Winner: Jacques

Strategic meaning:
Jacques winning immunity at this exact moment matters because he's the public face of Naale Alliance #2 with Taylor. It lets that lane push a target (Shawn) without fear of blowback.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Campers

- Kitty & MacArthur bond slightly
  Strategic consequence: Kitty tries to rebuild after burning two idols. A small bond with the only remaining idol holder is the best "stay alive" move she has.
- Kitty & Sky have a small fight
  Strategic consequence: and that's the nightmare. Kitty was already the merge's obvious lightning rod. Fighting Sky risks turning MacArthur's closest partner into an anti-Kitty voice.

- MacArthur keeps impressing everyone
  Strategic consequence: when the idol holder is also respected, people stop thinking "flush the idol" and start thinking "remove the player." That's dangerous for her later—but it makes her vote matter right now.
- Cody works hard and becomes tired
  Strategic consequence: it doesn't hurt him today, but it adds a tiny "wear-down" narrative that Laurie can weaponize later.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets

- Kitty → Shawn (extreme despise)
- Shawn → Kitty (extreme despise)
- Cody → Taylor (does not like her)
- Laurie → Carrie (strong dislike)
- Taylor → Scott (slightly negative)

This is classic merge chaos: everyone has a personal vendetta, but alliances decide what becomes real.

Group Targets (the real lanes)

- Scott/Shawn (Lawa Alliance #2) → Kitty
- MacArthur/Sky (Mauhu Alliance #1) → Kitty
  Strategic reality: two separate blocs align on the same boot. That's the merge telling you "your shield is gone."
- Jacques/Taylor (Naale Alliance #2) → Shawn
  Strategic reality: this is the "cut the duo" plan. If Shawn goes, Scott loses half his power.
- Carrie/Cody/MacArthur (Lawa Alliance #3) → Laurie
  Strategic reality: this is the quieter, cleaner move—remove a hostile number (Laurie) while bigger targets shoot at each other.

Final Targets: Kitty / Laurie / Shawn

And that's the triangle the episode lives in:

- Kitty is the public enemy,
- Shawn is the structural threat,
- Laurie is the "safe boot" alternative that would keep camp calm.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #10 — Merge Tribal

Advantages in play (NOT used)

- MacArthur's Idol: held, not played
- Carrie's Vote Steal: held, not used
- Cody's Legacy: inactive

Strategic consequence: this is a pure numbers tribal. After Episode 9's chaos, everyone is cautious. Nobody wants to be the one who overplays—so the majority target actually lands.

Vote Breakdown

Kitty eliminated, 5–3–3

Votes for Kitty (5): Laurie, Scott, Shawn, Sky, Tom Votes for Laurie (3): Carrie, Cody, MacArthur (MacArthur was "supposed" to vote Kitty but disagreed)
Votes for Shawn (3): Jacques, Kitty, Taylor

Why Kitty goes here

- Scott/Shawn lane and Sky lane finally overlap.
- Jacques/Taylor can't get the numbers onto Shawn without recruiting MacArthur or Carrie.
- Carrie/Cody/MacArthur try to steer it to Laurie, but they're short—and MacArthur's "disagree" vote shows she wasn't willing to follow the Kitty pile-on.

Kitty doesn't have idols anymore, and the tribe doesn't hesitate.

ELIMINATED

Kitty
Placement: 10th voted out / 3rd jury member
Reason label: "post-idol execution" — once her protection was gone, the merge finished the job immediately.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Episode 9 didn't save Kitty's game—it bought her one extra night.
   Idol firewall was brilliant, but it also painted a huge "event player" target. Once the idols were spent, she had no armor left.
2. Scott/Shawn successfully removed the person most likely to come after them… but they didn't remove the bigger threat to their duo.
   Kitty hated Shawn, yes. But Jacques/Taylor targeting Shawn shows the duo is still the merge's long-term bullseye.

3. MacArthur refusing to vote Kitty is a giant merge signal.
   She chose her own lane over the easiest consensus boot. That tells everyone she's not a passenger—she's a driver with an idol.
4. Carrie just became a silent endgame threat.
   She found Vote Steal and didn't need to use it. That's perfect: no blood, all power.
5. Jacques/Taylor's Shawn hit didn't land, but it still mattered.
   Those 3 votes (Jacques, Taylor, Kitty) show a real anti-Shawn lane exists. Shawn is not safe just because Kitty is gone.
6. Laurie survives because she's useful as a future vote—not because she's liked.
   She was still a main target with 3 votes. That's "spare tire" territory: people keep you until they don't need you.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Campers (10 Remaining)

Jury: Jasmine, Pete, Kitty

Alliances still active on paper:

- Lawa Alliance #2: Scott / Shawn
- Naale Alliance #2: Jacques / Taylor
- Mauhu Alliance #1: MacArthur / Sky
- Lawa Alliance #3: Carrie / Cody / MacArthur

Advantages:

- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol (still held)
- Carrie: Vote Steal (still held)
- Cody: Legacy (still held, inactive this round)
- Campers idol: hidden somewhere

New merge reality:
With Kitty gone, the season's biggest feud ends—but the structure war begins:

- Scott/Shawn vs Jacques/Taylor,
- with Carrie/MacArthur as the swing power lane,
- and Sky as the "loyal enforcer" attached to an idol holder.

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. With Kitty gone, does Shawn become the next obvious target for Jacques/Taylor?
2. Does Scott tighten the duo's grip—or does he get forced into playing defense socially?

3. Does Carrie finally use Vote Steal to break a stalemate, or keep it for Final 6 chaos?
4. Will MacArthur's idol become public knowledge—and if it does, who tries the first flush?
5. Laurie was almost the "safe boot." Does she become the next consensus target now that Kitty is gone?
6. Who finds the Campers hidden idol, and does it change the merge math overnight?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — "the merge is no longer chaos… it's infrastructure"

With Kitty gone, the season's loudest feud is finally dead—and immediately replaced by something scarier: a clean, organized map of power pairs and overlapping loyalties. It's the kind of merge where every smile feels like a confessional lie.

The stable pillars:

- Scott ↔ Shawn: unbreakable
  Strategic impact: they're still a locked voting engine. The longer they survive as a two-person machine, the more everyone else's "best move" becomes breaking them up.
- Carrie ↔ Taylor: unbreakable
  Strategic impact: Carrie is protected by the most socially connected person left. Taylor isn't just a friend—she's Carrie's voting access pass to half the camp.
- MacArthur ↔ Sky: unbreakable
  Strategic impact: Mauhu remains the only "tribe-shaped" duo that still behaves like a tribe. Sky keeps MacArthur socially insulated, and MacArthur keeps Sky safe through intimidation + idol threat.

But the real twist isn't the bonds—it's the web:

- MacArthur ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable

- MacArthur ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
- Taylor ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: MacArthur isn't just an idol holder anymore—she's the merge's central bridge. She can connect Cody to Jacques, Jacques to Sky, Sky to Carrie… and suddenly she's holding the season together by force of relationships.

And sitting behind all of it:

- Carrie's Vote Steal
  Strategic impact: Carrie has "producer-level" power now. Even if she never uses it, the threat of it changes how people count votes.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Campers

- Campers Hidden Immunity Idol: hidden
- Carrie: Vote Steal (usable up to Final 5)
- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive this round)
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol (still held)

Strategic impact:
After Kitty burned out of the advantage game, the power vacuum reshapes:

- MacArthur is the only obvious idol owner.
- Carrie is the only obvious "vote-math warhead."
- Cody has a late-game advantage that makes him valuable to keep… but also terrifying to let reach 6.

CHALLENGES

Reward Challenge — Angry Chair

Two teams of five race → collect 30 numbered bags → solve letter-tile word puzzle.

Group 1: Carrie / Scott / Shawn / Sky / Tom
Group 2: Cody / Jacques / Laurie / MacArthur / Taylor

Winner: Group 2 — luxury resort overnight stay + meal.

Strategic meaning:
This is a Total Drama style reward: food, comfort, and private time to plot. Group 2 doesn't just get fed—they get to build a mini-merge alliance away from camp paranoia. Laurie is included too, which gives her one more chance to not be the boot… if she can stop being herself.

Immunity Challenge — High Step and Stack

Stack blocks across a platform, trip hazards, domino topple finish.

Winner: Carrie

Strategic meaning:
Carrie wins immunity at the exact moment her name is starting to feel “merge-relevant.” She doesn’t have to play quiet tonight—she can play directional.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Campers

- MacArthur ↔ Sky: minor disagreement (lasting)
  Strategic consequence: this is the first real crack in Mauhu’s perfect duo image. They’re still bonded, but now people can imagine separating them.
- Laurie ↔ Scott: small fight
  Strategic consequence: Laurie keeps collecting friction. After the Kitty vote, the camp wants “calm.” Laurie is the opposite of calm.
- Cody ↔ Jacques bond slightly
  Strategic consequence: this is enormous because it’s unexpected. Two strategists who could easily be rivals instead create a usable bridge—especially with MacArthur sitting between both of them socially.

Campers Alliance #1 forms (Strength 6)

Cody (L6) / Jacques (L6) / Sky (L6) / Taylor (L5) / Tom (L5)

Strategic consequence:
This is the biggest structural event of the episode. It’s a new merge bloc that:

- overlaps with Mauhu through Sky,
- overlaps with Naale through Jacques/Taylor,
- and gives Tom a place to hide.

It’s not “friends.” It’s a coalition built to aim votes.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets

- Carrie → Jacques (does not like him)
- Cody → Laurie (extremely despises her)
- Shawn → Taylor (small threat + slightly negative)
- Taylor → Scott (slightly negative)

These are personal lanes—but group targets determine the boot.

Group Targets (real lanes)

- Scott/Shawn (Lawa Alliance #2) → Taylor
  Strategic reality: they're trying to cut Carrie's social bridge and weaken the Jacques/Taylor axis at once.
- Jacques/Taylor (Naale Alliance #2) → Scott
  Strategic reality: direct strike at the unbreakable duo's muscle half. If Scott goes, Shawn becomes manageable.
- MacArthur/Sky (Mauhu Alliance #1) → Laurie
- Carrie/Cody/MacArthur (Lawa Alliance #3) → Laurie
- Campers Alliance #1 → Laurie
  Strategic reality: when three different lanes all choose the same person, that person is functionally dead. Laurie becomes the merge's "everybody can live with it" boot.

Final Targets

Taylor / Scott / Laurie

The episode sets up like a three-way war… but ends like a firing squad.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #11 — Merge Tribal

Advantages in the room (NOT used)

- Carrie: Vote Steal — not played
- MacArthur: Idol — not played
- Cody: Legacy — inactive

Strategic consequence:
Nobody wants to overplay after the idol chaos of Episode 9. Everyone goes old-school: count the votes, pick the clean boot.

Vote Breakdown

Laurie eliminated, 5–3–2

Votes for Laurie (5): Carrie, Cody, MacArthur, Sky, Tom Votes for Taylor (3): Laurie, Scott, Shawn
Votes for Scott (2): Jacques, Taylor

What the vote reveals

- The anti-duo war is real: Jacques/Taylor still fire at Scott.
- Scott/Shawn still fire at Taylor.
- But the majority of the camp chose neither battle and removed the person who annoyed everyone and threatened Cody directly.

It's not flashy. It's effective.

ELIMINATED

Laurie
Placement: 11th voted out / 4th jury member

Reason label: "merge pressure release" — the boot that keeps everyone else from exploding for one more round.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Laurie didn't lose because she was weak—she lost because she was the only target everyone could agree on.
   When a merge has multiple power pairs, the safest move is removing the person who doesn't belong to any pair and creates camp stress. That was Laurie.
2. Campers Alliance #1 is the season's new center of gravity.
   Cody/Jacques/Sky/Taylor/Tom is a coalition that touches every major lane. Even if it's temporary, it decides the next vote.
3. Scott/Shawn are now officially at war with the Carrie/Taylor/Jacques lane.
   Votes on Taylor + votes on Scott in the same tribal means the shots are no longer hypothetical. Next time, it's not "maybe."
4. MacArthur is playing the idol-holder role perfectly: power without panic.
   She didn't need the idol. She voted in the majority. She kept options open. That is how an idol becomes an endgame weapon instead of a pre-merge crutch.
5. Carrie's immunity win plus Vote Steal means she is quietly becoming the season's main character threat.
   She's immune, she's connected, and she holds a steal. Total Drama logic says: if you let that reach Final 5, you deserve what happens.
6. Tom escaping the Mauhu alliance on paper was smart—but he still voted with the new coalition.
   Tom is trying to stop being seen as "MacArthur's number" while still acting like one when it counts. That's stealth gameplay.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Campers (9 Remaining)

Jury: Jasmine, Pete, Kitty, Laurie

Alliances:

- Lawa Alliance #2: Scott / Shawn
- Naale Alliance #2: Jacques / Taylor
- Mauhu Alliance #1: MacArthur / Sky
- Lawa Alliance #3: Carrie / Cody / MacArthur
- Campers Alliance #1: Cody / Jacques / Sky / Taylor / Tom

Advantages:

- Carrie: Vote Steal (unused)
- MacArthur: Idol (unused)
- Campers idol: hidden
- Cody: Legacy (still held, inactive this round)

Merge reality:
The “easy boot” phase is over. Now it’s pair-vs-pair math—and whoever loses the next immunity is going to feel it.

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does the tribe finally stop dodging the war and choose Scott vs Taylor for real?
2. Can Jacques and Cody keep bonding, or does it collapse into a “two strategists can’t coexist” fight?
3. Will MacArthur’s lasting disagreement with Sky turn into an exploitable crack?
4. Does Shawn push harder against Taylor now that Laurie isn’t available as a pressure-release boot?
5. When does Carrie actually pull the trigger on Vote Steal—and who gets robbed?
6. Who finds the hidden Campers idol, and does it flip the merge hierarchy overnight?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — "power couples everywhere… so the swing vote becomes a horror movie"

After Laurie's boot, camp feels cleaner—until you notice what's left: unbreakable pairs stacked on top of unbreakable pairs. It's like Total Drama merge math: everyone has a "bestie," and the people without one get eaten.

The hard-locked pillars:

- Scott ↔ Shawn: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: the last pure duo standing. Everyone has been trying to split them since the merge… and they keep surviving.
- Taylor ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: this duo is basically "strategy class." If they control the vote, they'll always choose the option that gives them the cleanest path to finals.
- Carrie ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: the season's most emotionally intense pair. The difference now is that they're no longer just surviving—people are starting to plan around them.

And then there's the gravitational center:

- MacArthur ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable
- MacArthur ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
- MacArthur ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable
- Scott ↔ MacArthur: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: MacArthur has quietly become the merge's "switchboard." If this were Disventure Camp, she's the contestant who ends up in every montage because she's connected to every plotline—whether she wants to be or not.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Campers

- Tom finds the Campers Hidden Immunity Idol (playable before votes are read)
- Carrie: Vote Steal (unused)
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol (still held)
- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive this round)

Strategic impact:
The "advantage era" didn't end with Kitty leaving—it just changed owners.

- Tom suddenly stops being background scenery and becomes the person who can ruin a plan.
- Carrie still has a nuclear button (Vote Steal).
- MacArthur still has the old Mauhu idol.

That's two idols + a steal in one round… and nobody even flinches yet.

Reward Challenge — Full Tilt Boogey

Rope-threaded obstacle sprint, grouped into trios.

Groups:

- Group 1: Carrie / Cody / MacArthur
- Group 2: Jacques / Scott / Tom
- Group 3: Shawn / Sky / Taylor

Winner: Group #1 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur)

They share the Loved Ones barbecue with Shawn and Jacques (exactly as recorded).

Strategic meaning:
This reward is basically a writers' room gift:

- Carrie/Cody/MacArthur get private time as a unit, strengthening the "unbreakable web."
- Shawn being invited is huge—he gets to socialize with the power center instead of being trapped in the Scott/Shawn bunker.
- Jacques being invited means the Jacques/Taylor duo gets "diplomat time" with the other major lanes.

It looks wholesome. It's actually coalition engineering.

Immunity Challenge — Can't Buoy Me Love

Balance on a perch while holding a buoy. Last standing wins.

Winner: MacArthur

Strategic meaning:
MacArthur wins at the exact moment multiple factions are aiming at Shawn and Taylor. Her immunity removes the easiest "safe target" option and forces the vote to hit a real person.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Campers

- MacArthur has a major meltdown
  Strategic consequence: it's chaotic, but it also reinforces her "big character shield" energy. People don't blindside the person who's melting down and wearing immunity—they just wait for tomorrow.
- Cody ↔ Scott have a small fight
  Strategic consequence: this is subtle but dangerous. Cody and Scott are both critical connectors to different lanes. A fight here makes it easier for the camp to commit to "split the duo" logic.
- Campers Alliance #1 shifts as Tom leaves it
  Campers Alliance #1 (Cody/Jacques/Sky/Taylor/Tom) loses Tom.
  Strategic consequence: Tom is doing the classic idol-holder move: step away from the visible structure so nobody tracks your vote. It's not dramatic—it's stealth.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets

- Shawn → Taylor (threat management + slight negativity)
- Sky → Shawn (strong dislike)
- Scott → Jacques (does not like him)
- Taylor → Tom (does not like him)

It's a mess on paper… but the group targets make it clear where the episode is going.

Group Targets (the real lanes)

- Lawa Alliance #2 (Scott/Shawn) → Taylor
  Strategic reality: they're trying to cut the Jacques/Taylor brain trust and also weaken Carrie's unbreakable partner.
- Naale Alliance #2 (Jacques/Taylor) → Shawn
  Strategic reality: this is the cleanest way to break the Scott/Shawn duo without taking heat for it.
- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur/Sky) → Shawn
  Strategic reality: Sky is locked in on Shawn, and MacArthur's lane matches it—until MacArthur… doesn't.
- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur) → Shawn
  Strategic reality: the power web wants Shawn out because he's a stable vote that can't be easily redirected once he commits.
- Campers Alliance #1 (Cody/Jacques/Sky/Taylor) → Shawn
  Strategic reality: when a coalition's target aligns with multiple older alliances, the vote becomes "simple" for once: Shawn.

Final Targets

Shawn / Taylor / Tom

Tom is in the “final targets” list because Taylor wants him personally and because he’s the quietest, easiest late pivot… but the merge is ready to make a statement tonight.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #12 — Merge Tribal

Advantages in the room (NOT used)

- Tom: Campers Idol — not played
- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol — not played
- Carrie: Vote Steal — not played
- Cody: Legacy — inactive

Strategic consequence:
Everyone is hoarding. The game is officially in the “save it for Final 6” era.

Vote Breakdown

Shawn eliminated, 5–4

Votes for Shawn (5): Carrie, Cody, Jacques, Sky, Taylor
Votes for Taylor (4): MacArthur, Scott, Shawn, Tom

What this reveals

- The camp finally succeeds in splitting Scott/Shawn.
  Not by chaos—by coalition agreement.
- MacArthur openly disagreed and voted Taylor anyway.
  That matters. It’s the first loud signal that MacArthur is not automatically marching with the “everyone vote Shawn” plan—even when it benefits her socially.
- Tom voted Taylor on personal preference… while holding the idol.
  That’s classic Total Drama irony: the quiet guy is suddenly the most dangerous person in the room, and nobody notices because the vote is “about the duos.”

ELIMINATED

Shawn
Placement: 12th voted out / 5th jury member

Reason label: “merge consensus strike” — the vote that finally breaks the last unbreakable duo.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. The merge officially declared war on duos.
   Shawn going out is the “message boot.” Scott is now a solo player—meaning he becomes either easy to pick off or free to pivot into a new majority.
2. MacArthur’s disagreement is a flashing warning light.
   She didn’t need to protect Shawn—she chose to vote Taylor anyway. That’s either:
   A) MacArthur positioning against Jacques/Taylor’s dominance, or
   B) MacArthur refusing to let the camp tell her what to do.
   Either way, she’s becoming unpredictable.
3. Tom finding the idol changes the endgame, even though he didn’t play it.
   Tom now has the exact thing he needed: leverage. If he times it right, he can survive a round where he should be collateral.
4. Carrie/Cody/Jacques/Taylor/Sky just demonstrated they can form a functional majority.
   Five votes on one name with no idol panic is real structure. If they stay aligned, they can run two rounds back-to-back.
5. Scott is now the most important free agent on the beach.
   With Shawn gone, Scott’s next move defines the season:
   Does he join the majority as a number… or become the saboteur who flips it?

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Campers (8 Remaining)

Jury: Jasmine, Pete, Kitty, Laurie, Shawn

Alliances still listed:

- Lawa Alliance #2: Scott / Shawn (now broken by elimination)
- Naale Alliance #2: Jacques / Taylor
- Mauhu Alliance #1: MacArthur / Sky
- Lawa Alliance #3: Carrie / Cody / MacArthur
- Campers Alliance #1: Cody / Jacques / Sky / Taylor (Tom left)

Advantages:

- Tom: Campers Hidden Immunity Idol
- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol
- Carrie: Vote Steal
- Cody: Legacy (inactive)

Core tension moving forward:
Taylor survived by one vote. Scott survived without Shawn. Tom survived with an idol nobody suspects. And MacArthur survived a meltdown while wearing immunity—like a true Total Drama tank.

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does the majority that voted Shawn stay together, or instantly fracture now that the "easy consensus" is gone?
2. Is Taylor now the clear next boot after narrowly surviving 5–4?
3. Will Scott reinvent himself as a swing vote… or go full revenge mode?
4. Does Tom keep the idol secret, or does paranoia force a premature play?
5. Does MacArthur's disagreement become the start of a power flip against Jacques/Taylor?
6. When does Carrie finally use the Vote Steal—on a round where she needs it, or on a round where she can end someone?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — “everyone is bonded… but no one actually trusts anyone”

After Shawn’s elimination, the merge enters a new phase: no obvious duo left and everyone pretending they’re “free agents” while still secretly clinging to old alliances.

Core relationship web:

- Taylor ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable
- Taylor ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
- Carrie ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact:
  Taylor sits in the middle of two power lanes (Carrie and Jacques). That makes her socially untouchable this round—and explains why she immediately becomes the immunity threat.
- Scott ↔ MacArthur: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact:
  Scott's survival after Shawn's boot makes him dangerous. Everyone sees him as a connector who can float between power groups.
- MacArthur ↔ Cody / MacArthur ↔ Jacques / MacArthur ↔ Sky
  Strategic impact:
  MacArthur is still the human switchboard. Everyone wants her on their side—but she refuses to vote in lockstep, which makes her unpredictable.
- Jacques ↔ Cody: mutual medium bond
  Strategic impact:
  This bond keeps the "strategist class" from fully turning on each other… for now.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Campers

- Tom: Campers Hidden Immunity Idol
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol
- Carrie: Vote Steal
- Cody: Legacy Advantage (inactive)

Strategic impact:
This is now the most stacked advantage pool of the season:

- Tom has the public tribe idol.
- MacArthur still holds the old Mauhu idol.
- Carrie can literally steal a vote.
- Cody is one round away from a nuclear Legacy moment.

Yet… nobody uses anything.
That means players are saving weapons for endgame wars.

Immunity Challenge — Teeter Tower

Balance board + house of cards under pressure.

Winner: Taylor

Strategic meaning:
Taylor winning immunity is massive. Every alliance is quietly scared of her:

- She's bonded with Carrie.
- She's bonded with Jacques.
- She's socially clean.
- She's good at puzzles.

The moment she wins, the target has to shift—because she was absolutely a contender to be clipped here.

Campers

- Jacques & Scott bond slightly
  Strategic consequence:
  This is subtle but ironic—because Scott ends up being the boot. It shows Scott was trying to build bridges… just too late.
- MacArthur & Sky minor disagreement (lasting)
  Strategic consequence:
  This explains why MacArthur refuses to vote with Sky's preferred target. Their Mauhu lane is cracking.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets

- Carrie → Jacques (mutual dislike)
- Jacques → Carrie (mutual dislike)
- Taylor → Scott (threat management)
- Cody → Tom (slight distrust)

This is where the episode pretends to be chaotic…
…but every alliance lines up on the same name.

Group Targets (real power lanes)

- Naale Alliance #2 (Jacques/Taylor) → Scott

- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur/Sky) → Scott
- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur) → Scott
- Campers Alliance #1 (Cody/Jacques/Sky/Taylor) → Scott

Strategic reality:
Scott becomes the perfect storm target:

- Lost his ride-or-die (Shawn).
- Has bonds everywhere.
- Seen as adaptable and dangerous.
- Doesn't have an idol.

Everyone agrees: cut the swing vote before he flips the game.

Final Targets

Scott / Tom

Tom is the backup target because:

- People suspect he might have something.
- He's socially quiet.
- But Scott is the real threat.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #13 — Merge Tribal

Advantages in the room (NOT played)

- Tom's Idol — NOT used
- MacArthur's Idol — NOT used
- Carrie's Vote Steal — NOT used
- Cody's Legacy — inactive

Strategic consequence:
Everyone chooses trust in numbers over advantage chaos.

Vote Breakdown

Scott eliminated, 6–2

Votes for Scott (6):
Carrie, Cody, Jacques, Sky, Taylor, Tom

Votes for Tom (2):
MacArthur, Scott

What this reveals

- Scott is officially declared "too dangerous to keep."
  He loses because everyone is scared of his flexibility.
- MacArthur refuses to follow the group again.
  She votes Tom instead—proving she is not a sheep in any majority.
- Tom votes Scott… while holding an idol.
  He chooses to stay invisible instead of flashy.
  Smart Total Drama move.

ELIMINATED

Scott
Placement: 13th voted out — 6th Jury Member

Reason label: "Swing-vote execution" — eliminated before he could flip the endgame.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. The merge has entered "duo extermination mode."
   First Shawn. Now Scott.
   Any remaining tight pair should be terrified.
2. Taylor is officially the season's social queen.
   Immune, bonded to both power centers, never in danger.
   This is winner energy.
3. MacArthur is playing her own game.
   She voted Tom against every alliance she's in.
   That's dangerous… but also jury-respectful.
4. Tom is silently becoming lethal.
   Idol in pocket. No votes. No suspicion.
   That's how late-game villains are born.
5. Carrie still hasn't used the Vote Steal.
   That means she's waiting for a kill shot moment.
6. Cody survives again without being targeted.
   Legacy advantage still untouched.
   Nobody wants to be the one who activates it.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Campers (7 Remaining)

Carrie
Cody
Jacques
MacArthur
Sky
Taylor
Tom

Jury: Jasmine, Pete, Kitty, Laurie, Shawn, Scott

Advantages:

- Tom — Campers Idol
- MacArthur — Mauhu Idol
- Carrie — Vote Steal
- Cody — Legacy (inactive)

Power dynamics:

- Taylor sits in the best spot socially.
- MacArthur refuses to be controlled.
- Tom is hiding an idol like a ghost.
- Carrie & Cody are still welded together.
- Jacques is protected by Taylor.
- Sky is floating but loyal to MacArthur.

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Tom finally get exposed as the idol holder?
2. Does MacArthur's rogue voting make her the next target?
3. Will Carrie finally pull the trigger on her Vote Steal?
4. Does Cody's Legacy become active soon—and who does he will it to?
5. Is Taylor now too powerful socially to ignore?
6. Who becomes the next "dangerous connector" now that Scott is gone?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — “the social web finally snaps”

With only seven players left, the merge hits a brutal stage:
everyone is connected, but not equally protected.

Core bonds:

- Carrie ↔ Taylor: mutual unbreakable
- Taylor ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
- Carrie ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact:
  Taylor is still sitting at the center of the game.
  She’s socially shielded from every angle — which is exactly why she becomes dangerous.
- MacArthur ↔ Cody: strong bond
- MacArthur ↔ Jacques: strong bond
  Strategic impact:
  MacArthur continues being the social bridge between power players.
  But this week, cracks start forming.
- Tom ↔ Sky: medium bond
  Strategic impact:
  Tom finally has a real ally — which explains Sky’s rogue vote later.

Major fracture:

- Tom ↔ Taylor: mutual medium dislike
  Strategic impact:
  This rivalry quietly becomes the episode’s endgame — immunity vs idol vs numbers.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

- Carrie — Vote Steal
- MacArthur — Mauhu Idol

- Tom — Campers Idol
- Cody — Legacy Advantage (inactive)

Strategic impact:
Four advantages in play.
This round cannot be clean — someone has to blink.

Immunity Challenge — Vertigo

High perch, water transfer, puzzle finish.

Winner: Jacques

Strategic meaning:
Jacques winning immunity is huge:

- He was targeting Carrie.
- He was also a possible target himself.
- This forces the entire tribe to pivot.

Jacques is officially safe — but now has blood on his hands.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

- Jacques impresses the tribe
  Strategic consequence:
  His win confirms he's not just a brain — he's a physical threat too.
- Carrie & MacArthur find common ground (lasting)
  Strategic consequence:
  Their bond strengthens, locking Lawa Alliance #3 even tighter.
- MacArthur & Sky MAJOR fight (lasting)
  Strategic consequence:
  Mauhu Alliance #1 collapses.
  Sky no longer blindly follows MacArthur — and it shows at Tribal.
- Carrie exhausts herself at camp
  Narrative flavor:
  She's grinding socially and physically — but it's costing her energy.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets

- Tom → Taylor (strong dislike)
- Taylor → Tom (strong dislike)
- Jacques → Carrie
  The triangle is set: Tom vs Taylor vs Carrie.

Group Targets (real power lanes)

Every alliance locks onto Tom:

- Naale Alliance #2 (Jacques/Taylor) → Tom
- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur/Sky) → Tom
- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur) → Tom
- Campers Alliance #1 (Cody/Jacques/Sky/Taylor) → Tom

Strategic reality:
Tom becomes the consensus boot:

- Quiet.
- Idol rumors.
- Growing bond with Sky.
- And openly feuding with Taylor.

Final Targets

Tom / Taylor

But Tom is the intended victim.

TRIBAL COUNCIL #14

Advantages in the room

- Tom — Campers Idol
- MacArthur — Mauhu Idol
- Carrie — Vote Steal
- Cody — Legacy (inactive)

The Moment

Tom plays his idol.

All votes against Tom…
VOID.

The room freezes.

VOTE REVEAL

- 5 votes Tom — CANCELLED
- 2 votes Taylor — COUNT

Taylor is eliminated.

WHY TAYLOR LEFT

- Sky flips due to her blowup with MacArthur.
- Tom saves himself.
- Taylor becomes the only vulnerable alternate target.

She wasn't outplayed…
She was collateral damage.

ELIMINATED

Taylor
Placement: 14th voted out — 7th Jury Member

Reason label: Idol ricochet — taken out by someone else's move.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Tom just flipped the entire season.
   Perfect idol timing.
   Zero votes.
   Maximum chaos.
2. MacArthur loses control of Sky.
   Their major fight directly causes Taylor's exit.
   Social cracks finally cost her power.
3. Taylor's social dominance became her downfall.
   When idols hit, the most connected player becomes the backup target.

4. Carrie is still holding her Vote Steal.
   She could have forced a different outcome — but saved it.
   That restraint is terrifying.
5. Jacques played this perfectly.
   Immunity + correct vote + no blowback.
   He's quietly becoming endgame material.
6. Tom goes from invisible to kingmaker in one move.
   This is peak Total Drama gameplay.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Final 6

Carrie
Cody
Jacques
MacArthur
Sky
Tom

Jury: Jasmine, Pete, Kitty, Laurie, Shawn, Scott, Taylor

Advantages left:

- Tom — none (idol used)
- MacArthur — Mauhu Idol
- Carrie — Vote Steal
- Cody — Legacy (inactive)

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Tom become target #1 after that idol play?
2. Will Carrie finally unleash the Vote Steal?
3. Does MacArthur regain control… or keep burning allies?
4. Is Jacques quietly sliding into the best endgame spot?
5. Does Sky stay loyal to Tom — or flip again?
6. When does Cody's Legacy finally activate… and who gets it?

If you want, I'll continue with Episode 15 (Final 6) in this exact format 👑🔥

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — “final six: every bond is real, every dislike is weaponized”

This is the part of the season where Total Drama stops being “tribe vs tribe” and becomes six people trapped in a pressure cooker, trying not to blink first.

Key loyalty lanes still standing:

- Carrie ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: This is the season’s most reliable duo. Even when chaos hits, they default back to each other like it’s muscle memory.
- MacArthur ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: Carrie didn’t just survive merge — she built a tank. With MacArthur locked in, Carrie has a real “shield + enforcer” behind her.
- MacArthur ↔ Cody: mutual strong bond + MacArthur ↔ Jacques: mutual strong bond
  Strategic impact: MacArthur is in the rare position of being loyal-looking to multiple sides at once, which makes her terrifying at Final 6.
- Sky ↔ Jacques: mutual strong bond
  Strategic impact: Sky has a strategic anchor… but it comes with a cost: if Jacques wins immunity again, Sky becomes the obvious target to weaken him.
- Tom ↔ MacArthur: medium bond + Tom ↔ Sky: medium bond
  Strategic impact: Tom is the last “float” who still has bridges to both women… but those bridges are shaking.

Key fractures heating up:

- Sky ↔ MacArthur: mutual strong dislike
  Strategic impact: This is past “annoying rivalry.” It’s now a vote-driving feud. One of them has to go for the other to feel safe.
- Jacques ↔ Carrie: mutual medium dislike
  Strategic impact: This is the last major “strategist vs social node” war still active. If Jacques can’t strike Carrie, he risks losing the endgame to her network.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Campers

- Carrie: Vote Steal (usable until Final 5)
  Strategic impact: This is the “nuke in the pocket” that can instantly flip a 3-2-1 situation later.
- Cody: Legacy Advantage (ACTIVE — last round it can be used)
  Strategic impact: This is Cody’s one guaranteed safety button — after this episode, it’s gone.
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol
  Strategic impact: The scariest advantage left in the game. If she times it right, she can delete an entire plan.

Immunity Challenge — Maybe I'm A Maze

Winner: Jacques
Reward: chicken parmesan + spaghetti + garlic bread + key lime pie
Shared with: Sky + Cody

Strategic meaning:
Jacques winning here is huge because it forces everyone to play around him.
And sharing reward with Sky + Cody is the most “game of inches” move possible:

- Sky gets a morale boost and a check-in with her #1 bond (Jacques).
- Cody gets a strategic reset with the immunity winner right before Tribal.
- Carrie is left back at camp… and the tension starts building.

This feels very Total Drama: the “reward dinner” is basically a disguised negotiation table.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Campers (pre-Tribal storyline)

- Carrie and Tom have a major fight
  Strategic consequence: This is the kind of blow-up that makes everyone else stop pretending.
  Tom was already shaky, and now he’s actively drifting out of Carrie’s protection lane.

It’s also important because it gives Cody and MacArthur an excuse to say:

And in a Final 6, “unpredictable” is just a polite way of saying disposable.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets (personal lanes)

- Sky → MacArthur (extreme despise)
- MacArthur → Sky (extreme despise)
- Jacques → Carrie (strong dislike)
- Cody → Tom (slightly negative)

This is basically three mini-wars happening at once:

1. Sky vs MacArthur (mutual hate)
2. Jacques vs Carrie (strategic dislike)
3. Tom vs stability (everyone’s patience)

Group Targets (the real strategic lanes)

- Mauhu Alliance #1 (MacArthur + Sky) → Tom
  Strategic reality: even while hating each other, they agree Tom is the easiest non-risky boot.
- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie + Cody + MacArthur) → Sky
  Strategic reality: Carrie/Cody/MacArthur see Sky as the cleanest threat removal: she has a strong bond with Jacques, and she’s dangerous in endgame comps.
- Campers Alliance #1 (Cody + Jacques + Sky) → Tom
  Strategic reality: Jacques and Sky want a simple vote that doesn’t blow back onto them… and Cody is willing to go along if it keeps heat off him.

Final Targets

Tom vs Sky

So the vote becomes a Final 6 classic:

Do we remove the social/strategic weapon (Sky)…
or do we remove the loose cannon (Tom)…

TRIBAL COUNCIL #15 — Final 6

Advantages Played

- Cody plays the Legacy Advantage
  Result: any votes against Cody would not count.

Strategic consequence:
Even if no one planned to hit Cody, the mere act of playing it tells the room:

> "I'm not taking risks tonight."

It's a Survivor-style "insurance play," but it also announces Cody's endgame seriousness.

Vote Breakdown

Sky eliminated, 3–1–1–1

Votes for Sky (3): Carrie, Cody, MacArthur
Votes for Tom (1): Jacques
Votes for Carrie (1): Tom
Votes for MacArthur (1): Sky

What the vote reveals (story logic):

- Carrie/Cody/MacArthur stayed locked as a merge-era machine, and they chose the higher-value elimination.
- Jacques tried to keep it clean by voting Tom, but he didn't have numbers.
- Tom goes rogue on Carrie (after their fight), confirming he's emotionally voting now.
- Sky fires back at MacArthur, proving the feud wasn't strategy — it was personal.

This Tribal feels like a Total Drama merge episode where everyone walks in pretending it's "just strategy"…

ELIMINATED

Sky
Reason label: endgame threat removal — too connected (Jacques) + too dangerous to keep at Final 5.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. Carrie/Cody/MacArthur are now the season's clearest endgame trio.
   They didn't split. They didn't hesitate. They picked the most valuable target and executed.
2. Jacques losing Sky is the biggest storyline shift since the merge.
   Sky was his strongest bond. Now he's immune this round, but alone next round.
3. Cody burning the Legacy Advantage is correct — and perfectly timed.
   It's the last round he can use it. He cashes it in and walks into Final 5 with zero expiration risk.
4. Tom is now officially a wild card, not a number.
   Voting Carrie after the fight shows he's not just "floating"… he's reacting.
5. MacArthur surviving another round with an idol in her pocket is absurdly strong.
   She keeps the Mauhu idol, keeps her trio, and removes her biggest personal enemy.
6. This vote proved the "anti-Kitty era" is over — now it's the "Carrie era."
   Kitty used idols to survive.
   Carrie uses relationships to control.

CURRENT GAME STATUS

Campers (Final 5)

Players: Carrie / Cody / Jacques / MacArthur / Tom

Alliances still relevant:

- Lawa Alliance #3 core: Carrie + Cody + MacArthur (still the controlling unit)
- Jacques: socially linked to Cody/MacArthur but strategically isolated after Sky's exit
- Tom: middle-of-the-road bonds, but emotionally unstable vote pattern

Advantages:

- Carrie: Vote Steal (still active)
- MacArthur: Mauhu Idol (still active)

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS

1. Does Jacques finally take his clean shot at Carrie, or does he try to break MacArthur first?
2. Does Tom get dragged as a "goat," or does his chaos make him the next boot?
3. Carrie still has a Vote Steal… is Final 5 when she detonates it?
4. Can Jacques win immunity again, or does the trio finally get him out the moment he's vulnerable?

5. Does MacArthur ever have to play her idol… or does she reach the finale with it untouched?

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — "final five: nobody can hide anymore, so they start breaking"

This is the classic Total Drama endgame energy:
same beach, same people, but now it's pure nerves + ego + paranoia because one Tribal decides who even gets a shot at the finale.

Key stability anchors:

- Carrie ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: The ride-or-die duo is still intact. Even when the camp vibes collapse, their bond stays automatic.
- MacArthur ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: Carrie isn't just surviving socially — she has a bodyguard archetype locked in. MacArthur is essentially her shield at the endgame.
- MacArthur ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: This is the scariest relationship on the board because it makes Jacques harder to isolate, even when he's publicly beefing with everyone.

Key middle connections:

- MacArthur ↔ Cody: strong bond
  Strategic impact: This is why the trio never truly cracks. MacArthur can justify protecting Cody without it looking suspicious.
- Tom ↔ MacArthur: strong bond
  Strategic impact: Tom's only "real safety line" is MacArthur… but she's already welded to Carrie/Cody. That means Tom's protection is conditional.
- Tom ↔ Cody / Tom ↔ Jacques: slight bonds
  Strategic impact: Tom has soft social glue, but nothing strong enough to save him once the vote becomes "who is easiest to delete."

Major active fractures:

- Jacques ↔ Carrie: mutual medium dislike
  Strategic impact: This isn't a small rivalry — it's a full endgame storyline. It's strategist pride vs social dominance.
- Tom ↔ Carrie: mutual mild dislike
  Strategic impact: This is a "filler feud" that becomes lethal at Final 5 because it gives Carrie the cleanest possible justification to cut Tom.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

Campers (this round is basically "advantage expiration night")

- Carrie: Vote Steal (LAST round usable)
- Cody: Campers Hidden Immunity Idol (LAST round usable — newly found)
- MacArthur: Mauhu Hidden Immunity Idol (LAST round usable)

Strategic impact:
This Tribal is straight-up the Survivor "fire sale episode" where everything expires, so everyone is forced to play their hand or die with it.

And Cody finding the Campers idol right before Final 5 is insane timing:
he enters Tribal with the kind of protection you usually only see from production-favored villains 💀

Immunity Challenge — Spoon Man

Winner: Jacques

Strategic meaning:
Jacques winning immunity at Final 5 is basically him saying:

> "You can hate me all you want. You can't vote me out."

It also traps the others in a very Total Drama dynamic:
the loudest person in camp is safe… so everyone turns their rage sideways.

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Campers — “the camp becomes a group project from hell”

- Carrie vs Jacques: major fight
- Jacques vs Tom: major fight

Strategic consequence:
Jacques is immune, so he’s not trying to be “liked” anymore — he’s playing like a finalist. And that causes a domino effect: Carrie’s patience snaps, Tom’s nerves snap, and suddenly the camp has two separate arguments running at once.

- Cody & MacArthur bond slightly (lasting impact)
  Strategic consequence: While everyone is fighting like it’s Total Drama Action, Cody is quietly tightening the endgame structure.
  It’s the most “winner-coded” thing possible: build trust while others self-destruct.

VOTING DYNAMICS

Individual Targets

- Tom → Carrie (does not like her)
- Cody → Tom (slight negative)

This is the cleanest split possible: Tom wants the social queen out, Cody wants the loose cannon out.

Group Targets (the entire game agrees for once)

And this is where the episode title basically writes itself:

- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur) → Tom
- Campers Alliance #1 (Cody/Jacques) → Tom
- Campers Alliance #2 (Carrie/Jacques/MacArthur) → Tom

Strategic reality:
Every power lane, even the ones that hate each other, reaches the same conclusion:

> “Tom is the easiest Final 5 elimination.”

Tom becomes the “consensus boot” the way late-game Total Drama often does it:
not because he’s the biggest villain… but because he’s the easiest chapter to close.

Final Targets

Carrie vs Tom (BrantSteele finalizing them as the options)
But once immunity + alliances lock, it's basically:

✅ Tom
❌ Carrie (too protected + too central)

TRIBAL COUNCIL #16 — Final 5

Advantages Played (everything all at once)

- Carrie uses Vote Steal on Tom
  Tom loses his vote; Carrie gains an extra vote.
- MacArthur plays the Mauhu Idol
  Any votes against MacArthur do not count.
- Cody plays the Campers Idol
  Any votes against Cody do not count.

Strategic consequence:
This Tribal becomes a complete execution.
Tom walks in already outnumbered… and then loses his vote on top of it.

It's like a Total Drama elimination where the "villains" don't even bother pretending it's fair.

Vote Breakdown

Tom eliminated — unanimous pile-on (5 votes Tom)

Votes for Tom: Carrie (x2), Cody, Jacques, MacArthur

No other votes land.

Why it happened (story + strategy):

- Carrie removes Tom's ability to create chaos.
- Cody removes any possibility of a desperation counterstrike.
- MacArthur removes any chance of a blindside against her.
- Jacques is immune and chooses the cleanest path to Final 4.

Tom doesn't just lose… he gets steamrolled.

ELIMINATED

Tom
Reason label: Final 5 consensus boot — vote-stolen, idol-shielded, and eliminated by a cross-alliance agreement.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. This Tribal was an endgame "advantage dump" done correctly.
   Carrie plays her Vote Steal. Cody plays his idol. MacArthur plays hers.
   Nobody leaves with power in their pocket.
2. Jacques won immunity and used it like a scalpel.
   He didn't need to overplay socially — he let the majority pick the obvious boot while he stays clean.
3. Carrie proved she's not just social — she's decisive.
   Vote Steal isn't "extra safety," it's a statement:
   she wanted control, not a close vote.
4. Cody's idol find is absurdly clutch and keeps him on perfect trajectory.
   Final rounds are where Cody-types get sniped… unless they have protection.
   He did, and he used it.
5. MacArthur is still the most dangerous endgame player.
   She's connected to everyone who matters, and she made it through with her idol burned at the perfect time.
6. Tom wasn't eliminated for being weak… he was eliminated for being inconvenient.
   Late game votes are rarely about "who deserves it."
   They're about who prevents the finalists from reaching the finale smoothly.

Final 4

Carrie / Cody / Jacques / MacArthur

Power shape:

- Carrie + Cody = unbreakable duo
- MacArthur = the ultimate bridge + shield
- Jacques = immunity beast + strategic knife

All expiring advantages are now gone, meaning the end is pure relationships + comp wins.

NEXT EPISODE QUESTIONS (Finale Endgame)

1. Does Jacques try to finally strike Carrie, now that he can't hide behind "Tom is the easy boot"?
2. Is MacArthur the actual kingmaker of the Final 4… or the final boss?
3. Does Cody stay loyal to Carrie to the end, or does he take the winning shot if he gets the window?
4. Who wins the last immunity-style moment that decides the finalists?
5. In a jury vote, who has the best "story": Carrie's social domination, Cody's clutch survival, Jacques' comp + structure, or MacArthur's power-bridge game?

--- SUMMARY BODY ---

PRE-CHALLENGE STATUS

Tribe / Camp Relationships

Campers — "Final 4: the alliances overlap… but the hatred is louder than strategy now"

At Final 4, this season turns into peak Total Drama endgame chaos:
there's no "tribes" anymore, no buffers, no easy boots — just three different alliances stacked on top of each other and one rivalry that's so toxic it hijacks the entire finale.

Key locked bonds:

- MacArthur ↔ Carrie: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: This is the emotional anchor of the entire endgame. Carrie always had people, but MacArthur is the one who actively protects her.
- MacArthur ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: MacArthur isn't just Carrie's shield — she's also Cody's safety net. That makes her the most "jury-friendly power player" left.
- Carrie ↔ Cody: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: The core duo survived every war, every twist, every idol explosion… and they enter Final 4 still glued together.
- MacArthur ↔ Jacques: mutual unbreakable
  Strategic impact: This is the terrifying one. Jacques is supposed to be the outsider against the social trio… but MacArthur keeps him from being isolated.

Key fracture that defines the finale:

- Jacques ↔ Carrie: mutual EXTREME hatred
  Strategic impact: This is no longer "game rivalry." This is personal.
  In a finale setting, extreme hatred causes two things:
    1. people stop thinking in win-equity math
    2. people start playing to hurt someone else's chances

And that's exactly what happens.

SECRET ADVANTAGES

None.

Strategic impact:
No idols. No steals. No gimmicks.
Final 4 is supposed to be "pure social + challenge + decision-making."

Which makes what happens next even crazier.

Immunity Challenge — Final Four-titude

Winner: Jacques

Strategic meaning:
Jacques winning Final 4 immunity is a massive power swing because it forces the majority structure to finally collapse.

It's the endgame version of:

> "I'm not asking to survive. I'm deciding who doesn't."

And with Carrie vs Jacques hatred at maximum level, this should've been the most dramatic Tribal of the entire season.

But BrantSteele said: "Not today."

POST-CHALLENGE EVENTS

Campers — "the finale becomes a meltdown episode"

- Carrie and Jacques have a major fight
  Strategic consequence: This confirms the hatred isn't cooling off. If anything, it's escalating when it matters most.
- Jacques has a major meltdown
  Strategic consequence: This is the critical breaking point.
  Final 4 is already pressure-cooker territory, and Jacques winning immunity doesn't calm him down — it pushes him over the edge.
- Jacques leaves Campers Alliance #2
  (which was: Carrie / Jacques / MacArthur)
  Strategic consequence: The alliance web finally snaps. Jacques becomes fully untethered.

VOTING DYNAMICS (BEFORE THE QUIT)

Alliance lanes in play

- Lawa Alliance #3 (Carrie/Cody/MacArthur)
  → must turn on themselves
  Meaning: the trio is forced to finally pick which of them reaches the finals together.
- Campers Alliance #1 (Cody/Jacques) → targets Carrie
  Meaning: Jacques' "best move" on paper is removing the biggest social threat.
- Campers Alliance #2 (Carrie/MacArthur) → targets Cody
  Meaning: Carrie + MacArthur recognize Cody's jury chances and immunity track record potential.

Final Targets finalized by the game

Carrie / Cody / MacArthur
Jacques is immune, and the entire finale is lined up to be a brutal "choose your poison" vote.

TRIBAL COUNCIL

CANCELLED — Jacques quits the game.

Strategic consequence:
This is the wildest possible ending for Jacques' story:

- He wins immunity.
- He has complete safety.
- He still implodes so hard that he removes himself from the game.

It's Total Drama to the core — the kind of finalist who self-destructs in the last episode because they can't emotionally handle the pressure.

And the moment Jacques quits, the structure snaps into a Final 3 automatically.

ELIMINATED / EXITED

Jacques — QUIT (meltdown)
Reason label: finale collapse — immunity winner self-destructs and leaves the game, cancelling Tribal entirely.

FINAL TRIBAL COUNCIL

Finalists

Carrie / Cody / MacArthur

Jury:

Jasmine, Kitty, Laurie, Pete, Scott, Shawn, Sky, Taylor, Tom

Jury Vote Result

MacArthur wins — 6–2–1

- MacArthur: Jasmine, Kitty, Laurie, Scott, Shawn, Tom (6)
- Cody: Pete, Sky (2)
- Carrie: Taylor (1)

Strategic meaning of the vote:
MacArthur didn't just win — she won like a respected finisher.

This jury reward screams:
✅ social stability
✅ loyalty without passivity
✅ influence without being the "obvious villain"
✅ endgame control (idols + relationships)
✅ survived conflict without being defined by it

Carrie's game clearly had relationships (and a strong duo), but she lost the jury because people didn't view her as the "final driver" the way they viewed MacArthur.

Cody gets respect votes, but not enough to beat someone who was both a shield and a decision-maker.

THE WINNER

🏆 MacArthur
Final Jury Count: 6 MacArthur / 2 Cody / 1 Carrie

FAN FAVORITE

⭐ Spud wins Fan Favorite.

Meaning:
Spud got clipped early (joint tribal chaos)… but clearly stayed the most liked presence by the audience vibe of the season.

MAJOR STRATEGIC ANALYSIS

1. MacArthur played the best "power-social hybrid" game of the season.
   She wasn't just surviving — she was always connected to whoever mattered, across every swap/merge structure.
2. Jacques quitting is the most Total Drama finale outcome possible.
   Immunity winner quitting isn't logical Survivor gameplay — it's emotional collapse storytelling, and it perfectly fits his escalating hatred arc with Carrie.
3. Carrie's biggest strength became her weakness at FTC.
   She was always protected, always connected… but juries don't always reward the "center of bonds" if another finalist looks like the one who controlled the endgame.
4. Cody had the resume… but MacArthur had the respect.
   Cody survived wars, found key advantages, and stayed relevant.
   But MacArthur owned the jury's perception: dependable + strong + influential.
5. The jury vote lineup shows MacArthur beat every lane.
   She didn't just win one group — she won support from:
   - early jurors (Jasmine/Kitty/Laurie)
   - midgame power players (Scott/Shawn)
   - and the final boot (Tom)
6. Spud as Fan Favorite confirms the season's "chaos sweetheart."
   Even with an early exit, his presence clearly made enough impact to win the popularity vote.

FINAL GAME STATUS (END)

Winner: MacArthur
Runner-up: Cody

Third: Carrie
Quit at Final 4: Jacques
Fan Favorite: Spud
